FACADE OF CATHEDRAL IS MARRIED BY BULLETS

Weapon Fired from a Second Floor Window Is Like That in McSwiggin Killing.

Chicago, Ill., Oct. 11 (By A. P.).—W. W. O'Brien, former assistant State's attorney and famous criminal lawyer, was shot seven times, two notorious gangsters were killed and two other men were wounded late today when Chicago's gangland feud which has flared intermittently for two years past, blazed afresh.

The victims were ambushed on the near North Side almost in front of Holy Name cathedral, where the Eucharistic congress was opened last June and only a short distance from the flower shop of Dion O'Banion, where this notorious gunman and gangster was ambushed and slain two years ago.

Operating a machine gun from the second story window of an apartment building, one party of the gangsters sprayed their victims with lead while a second party riding in an automobile opened fire simultaneously with rifles and machine guns.

When the slaughter ended two men lay on the blood spattered street, one dead and the other dying, another crawled to the curb and collapsed and two others limped away and were found in a doctor's office.

Bullets Rake Cathedral.
The facade of the cathedral, which is the see of Cardinal Mundelein was raked with bullets.

A machine gun was found in a nearby alley where it supposedly was thrown after the attack.

The dead are Earl "Hymie" Weiss, notorious gangster and gunman who was associated with O'Banion before O'Banion's assassination, and Paddy Murray, gangster and brother of William Murray, who, with "Big Tim" Murphy, was sentenced to Leavenworth penitentiary for participation in a big mail robbery here a few years ago. O'Brien a year ago, with William Scott Stewart, defended William Darling Shepherd, who was acquitted of the slaying of his foster son, William Nelson McClintock, "millionaire orphan."

Helped to Defend Scott.
Later he was associated with Stewart in the defense of Russell Scott, who is still attempting to escape the noose for the killing of a drug clerk.

After dissolving his partnership with Stewart, O'Brien set up a firm of his own and at present was engaged in the defense of Joe Salts and Frank Koncl, well known gang leaders now on trial for the murder of John "Mittens" Foley, rival gangster.

O'Brien's habit of stuffing his pockets full of legal documents probably saved his life. A document more than an inch thick in his inside left breast pocket was found perforated with a bullet. The bullet was found in the pocket.

Police Seeking Capone.
The police took into custody all witnesses of the shooting they could find and a number of suspects and were hunting for Al Capone, gangster, but admitted they were working in the dark.

After a thorough examination tonight doctors said O'Brien's wounds were not as serious as at first believed, and that he should recover unless complication arise.

Besides O'Brien, the others wounded were Sam Pine, alias Peller, and Benny Jacobson—Jacobson was said to be an investigator for O'Brien and Pine was reported to have been associated with one of the various gang factions.

O'Brien had left the criminal court building only four blocks from where the shooting occurred, just a short time previously. According to witnesses, an automobile believed to have contained

TWO GIRLS TAKE POISON AFTER SCHOOL TRUANCY

Hine Pupils Made Suicide Pact, Fearing Parents, Police Say.

CONDITION NOT SERIOUS

Fearing to face their parents after they played "hokey" from school yesterday, Lillian Matthews, 15 years old, 1435 K street southeast, and Lillian Stallings, 14 years old, 523 Ninth street southeast, carefully planned a suicide pact at the home of the former and drank poisons while their playmates were returning home from school, according to police.

They are in Casualty hospital. Physicians believe that their condition is not serious. The two girls yesterday morning met near the Hine Junior High school, where they are students, they told police, and decided not to attend classes.

Where they went during the day, police failed to learn. They returned to the home of the Matthews girl about 3:30 o'clock. Then they became remorseful, they told police, and became afraid to face their mothers. They went to the bedroom and one of the girls suggested that they should both end their lives.

Both went to the bathroom and took a bottle of poison from the medicine cabinet. After swallowing their screams attracted the Matthews girl's sister, who found them lying on the floor writhing in agony. She summoned an ambulance from Casualty hospital. The girls were treated by Dr. O'Keefe, 638 B street southeast.

Cranking Starts Car; Woman Saves Driver

Miss Lillian Hollingsworth, 6919 Sixth street northwest, probably saved Richard Cooke, 3 Thomas Circle, from serious injury last night when his automobile started while he was cranking it in front of his home.

Miss Hollingsworth, who was sitting in the front seat of the automobile caught hold of the steering gear and turned it away from Cooke. The automobile mounted the sidewalk. Cooke and Policeman C. D. Poole, of the Second precinct, jumped on the running board and stopped the automobile in the middle of the circle.

Johnson's Companion Along Roadside Reveals Bullet Injury, Giving Conflicting Stories of How She Got It—Former Faces Arrest.

New developments in the slaying of Private Edgar Harry Miller, Fort Myer trooper, broke thick and fast yesterday.

The arrest of Ernest Johnson, of 1021 Ninth street northwest, who was shot in the right leg the night Miller met his death, is expected today or tomorrow, according to Fort Myer officials. Johnson, who was discharged from the Emergency hospital yesterday, has told conflicting stories as to how he was shot, and it is understood investigators want to question him further.

Miss Marian Ethel Gray, Johnson's companion the night of the shooting, who is held at the house of detention, also was shot in the leg, it was discovered yesterday.

The shell of the bullet which is believed to have killed Miller was discovered yesterday. Fort Myer officials found it imbedded in the grass about 7 feet from the spot where Miller's body was discovered last Wednesday morning, in a corner of the Arlington cemetery.

The theory is now advanced that the gun that killed Miller was

BOND ISSUE FAVORED FOR IMPROVEMENTS

Complaint Made That School Funds Are Inadequate; Lump Sums Attacked.

A bond issue to carry out civic improvements, national representation and retention of the present form of government were the high notes in expressions yesterday of civic representatives before the House District subcommittee.

Of the more than a dozen spokesmen heard, none gave approval to any plan to change the form of local government, although some favored enlarging the board of commissioners to five, and George C. Havenner, president of the Anacostia Citizens association and Board of Trade, expressed the belief that it would be better if the commissioners were drawn from each section of the city.

The bond issue, advanced by M. A. Leese, president of the Chamber of Commerce, found support and opposition from speakers who followed him.

School Faults Presented.

Schools and the lump sum plan of fiscal relationship between the Federal and District governments came in for complaint. Mrs. Giles Scott Rafter, president of the District congress of Parent-Teachers associations, said that the new school year found many insanitary and generally unsatisfactory conditions still extant in the schools. At the Oyster school, she said, there were inadequate facilities and children had to sit on the floor; part time classes were being reported to in the fourth grades, in contravention of the law.

At the Oyster school, it has also been complained that building construction and street improvement work almost make the school inaccessible. Parents bringing their children to school in automobiles can not come within several blocks of the school.

Representative Frank R. Reid, of Illinois, acted as a committee of one to hear the expressions. The expressions of civic representatives are being gathered for the guidance of the full subcommittee of seven. The hearing will be continued today at 11 o'clock in the House caucus room.

Control of Zoo Asked.

The District should either have the jurisdiction over the parks or it should not be required to maintain them, Mr. Havenner declared, mentioning zoological park in particular.

H. K. Bush-Brown, representing the Arts club, declared that sufficient money is not being provided for the schools. He recommended

Will Rogers Says Canada Replies No to Annexation Plan

Special to The Washington Post.
Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 11.—Arrived Canada's capital today. More sentiment here to be annexed by Mexico than by America. They know us too well. If we get any nation to join us it will have to be some stranger. We only have one reason for wanting Canada, and a modification of the Volstead act will eliminate that.
Awaiting instructions, WILL ROGERS.

QUEEN'S PARTY IS AGOG OVER HER SAILING TODAY

Maids and Mannequins Bump Against Each Other in Scramble to Pack.

SHE VISITS SHOPS AGAIN

Paris, Oct. 11 (By A. P.).—Queen Marie of Roumania and her entourage today hurried through their last-minute preparation for their departure for the United States tomorrow.

The queen and her immediate attendants were just about as much agog tonight as one could be without losing the police expected of royalty. Everybody else, even remotest connected with the final preparations, was plainly overcome with excitement.

On the eve of the queen's departure for the New World, her suite at the Hotel Ritz was what more ordinary tourists are given to describing as a madhouse. Maids, majordomos and mannequins bumped into one another as they scurried into room and from corridor to corridor trying to make sure that nothing intended to go into the party's 50 trunks had been forgotten.

Delivery boys came hustling up the grand staircase of the hotel one after another all afternoon, while maidettes, almost too excited to speak, tripped in with eleventh-hour purchases. The corridors were filled with trunks and garly flowered boxes, while her majesty's maids rushed around, kicking reams of tissue and wrapping paper and ribbons until the entire apartment seemed as if it had just emerged from a hurricane.

After acting as hostess at a luncheon, Queen Marie fled from the confusion this afternoon and wet for an automobile ride with her sisters, Grand Duchess Cyril Princess Beatrice.

A womanly impulse to buy just one thing more to squeeze into the luggage, however, struck her and she directed her chauffeur back to the shopping district a little after 4 p. m.

Wary from the most active week that she has passed in Paris, the queen remained in her suite for dinner and retired early, eager for the beginning of the experiences that will meet her on her visit to the United States. Her two special cars, with a special diner attached, will leave the St. Lazare station at 10:55 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Delegations representing the French navy, the chamber of commerce, the French government and the port authorities will bid the queen bon voyage at Cherbourg before she embarks on the Leviathan. Rear Admiral Roger Welles, commander of the American flotilla of destroyers in the French harbor, also will greet her before she boards the special tender Welcome for the Leviathan, where Capt. Hartley will quit the bridge and greet the royal party as soon as they embark upon his ship.

200 Yaquis Are Slain; Troops Lose 80 Men

Nogales, Ariz., Oct. 11 (By A. P.).—The Herald's correspondent at Magdalena today wired the newspaper that 200 Yaqui Indians and about 80 federal soldiers had been killed or wounded in an encounter near Corral Station, Sonora, Mexico, the night of October 6. The correspondent at Magdalena, with a military convoy, based his estimate on official communiques received by the commanding officer.

British Labor Blocks Communist Alliance

Margate, England, Oct. 11 (By A. P.).—An attempt to reopen the question of an affiliation between the communist party and the labor party was decisively defeated at the labor party's twenty-sixth annual conference here today. The proposal was defeated on a card vote by 2,706,000 to 349,000.

The debate was marked by heated scenes, and the result was received with cheers.

SALE OF DYE RIGHTS SUSTAINED BY ORDER OF SUPREME COURT

Seized German Secrets Disposed of Legally, Opinion Holds.

CONSPIRACY CHARGES DECLARED UNPROVEN

Ruling Asserts President Was Extended Full Powers Over Alien Holdings.

(By the Associated Press.)
Sale to the Chemical Foundation by the Alien Property Custodian of German chemical and dye patents, copyrights and trademarks, seized during the war, was sustained yesterday by the Supreme court.

The court's opinion, handed down by Justice Butler, held the government had failed to prove conspiracy in the transaction and affirmed decisions by the Federal district court and the circuit court of appeals in dismissing the complaint.

The government contended the sale should be set aside as domestic manufacturers had conspired to maintain a monopoly on the chemical dye industry and that this could not be done unless they obtained control of the German patents and trademarks.

The sale of the German patents, the government held, had been unlawfully made at nominal prices by the Alien Property Custodian to himself as head of the Foundation and without competitive bidding. Further it contended that the sale was made possible through the fraudulent deception of President Wilson and other officials.

President Given Power.

Discussing legality of the sale, the court pointed out that A. Mitchell Palmer while alien property custodian and later as Attorney General had advocated seizure and sale of the chemical industries of the enemy. The opinion analyzed developments consummated by President Wilson's executive order of December 3, 1918, finding that Congress in the exercise of its war powers had delegated authority to the President and that he had legally designated Frank L. Polk to act for him in the matter.

The orders issued by Polk in February and April, 1919, authorized the alien property custodian to sell at private sale to the Chemical Foundation without advertisement and upon such terms and conditions as he deemed proper were found by the court to be in accordance with law.

"The purpose of the trading with the enemy act was not only to weaken enemy countries by depriving their supporters of their properties," the court stated, "but also to promote production in the United States of things useful for the effective prosecution of the war."

Owners Have No Claim.

The court found that contemporaneous conditions and war legislation indicated a purpose on the part of Congress to employ all legitimate means effectively to the prosecution of the war and that the act under which the sale was made should therefore be liberally construed. Congress was untrammelled and free, the court added, to authorize the seizure, use or appropriation of such properties without any compensation to the owners, and did, as a matter of fact, make

13 MEN SENTENCED FOR FORT SILL FIRES

One to Serve 32 Years and One 30 Years; Committed Arson for Thrill.

Lawton, Okla., Oct. 11 (By A. P.).—Thirteen soldiers today pleaded guilty to being members of an arson ring that is alleged to have started fires which resulted in more than $2,000,000 damage at Fort Sill and were sentenced by Judge John M. Cotteral to serve terms in prison.

Roy Gassaway, who confessed to having participated in five fires, was sentenced to 52 years. Sections of this sentence which are concurrent, however, reduced his total to 32 years.

Ollie Drake received sentences of 30 years each for two fires. The sentences will run concurrently.

The other sentences imposed ranged from 3 to 22 years. The fires occurred last June and July. The defendants said they set fire to the buildings "for a thrill."

DAUGHERTY CASE MISTRIAL LEAVES BUCKNER IN DOUBT AS TO ENDING PROSECUTION

HARRY M. DAUGHERTY.

THOMAS W. MILLER.

Retrial of Daugherty Case May Need Authorization Of Sarge or Coolidge

Buckner Expected to Confer With Attorney General and Donovan Before Proceeding—Belief Is Expressed That Government Has Made Its Best Showing—Dye Suit Decision Is Cited.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

Attorney General Sargent and perhaps President Coolidge himself may now be called upon to decide whether Harry M. Daugherty is to be tried again. The question of the administration's next move, in view of the failure of Emory R. Buckner to substantiate his sensational charges to the satisfaction of the jury, is already a matter of speculation.

Buckner himself will be asked first whether he wants to go ahead. As he has spent upward of half a million dollars of government money so far, and has staked his reputation and personal and political ambition on the outcome of the case, according to reports reaching here, the assumption is that he will prefer to gamble with another jury rather than accept defeat. As he consulted Attorney General Sargent and Assistant Attorney General William J. Donovan, before proceeding with the first trial, the assumption is that he will do so again.

Mr. Buckner, in his role of district attorney, is subject by express provision of law to the "Attorney General. But the Attorney General has placed Donovan in charge of the criminal branch of the Department of Justice. Therefore, it will be up to Donovan to approve or disapprove of Buckner's recommendation.

3 Killed When Plane Falls at Philadelphia

Philadelphia, Oct. 11 (By A. P.). Three men were killed instantly here late today when the wings of their airplane collapsed 1,500 feet above the ground and the plane crashed with the motor running.

The men were T. Wister Shallcross, a commercial pilot, and George W. Widemer, a passenger, both of this city, and Clarence Markham, 22, a commercial pilot, of Vineland, N. J.

Witnesses said the wings suddenly folded up, the ship nosed over, and fell like a plummet, plowing deeply into a road.

Maryland Ensign Found Dead in Bay

Wilmington, Calif., Oct. 11 (By A. P.).—The body of Ensign Julian J. McShane, of the U. S. S. Tennessee, missing since Friday night, was discovered in the water near the Wilmington docks today. A naval board of inquiry was ordered by the commanding officer of the Tennessee.

The body was taken to undertakers rooms and information as to whether it showed signs that death had a cause other than drowning was refused. McShane's home was in Maryland. He was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1925.

Court Frees Talesmen, Following Deadlock of 65 Hours.

10-2 FOR CONVICTION OF MILLER, IS RUMOR

Vote of 6-6 on the Former Attorney General Also Reported in Corridors.

BOTH APPEAR JUBILANT UPON HEARING OUTCOME

Length of Deliberations Sets Record for New York Federal Building.

New York, Oct. 11 (By A. P.). A "hung jury" today ended the five weeks' conspiracy trial of Harry M. Daugherty and Thomas W. Miller, government officials under President Warren G. Harding. The jurors had been out more than 65 hours, longer than any other jury in the history of the Federal building.

Former Attorney General Daugherty was the first man to be brought to trial on a charge of conspiracy to defraud the government he served while a member of a President's cabinet.

Daugherty, and Miller, former alien property custodian, were indicted for conspiring to defraud the government of their best services in permitting the release in 1921 of $7,000,000 war impounded assets of the American Metal Co.

Jury Finally Discharged.

The case was given to the jury at 9:43 o'clock Friday night. Saturday failure to agree was reported, but Judge Julian Mack insisted on further deliberation. Again yesterday the jury was told that not yet would anything but a verdict be acceptable to the court.

At 3 o'clock today, however, the talesmen were called into the court room for the last time, and again reported inability to agree, whereupon Judge Mack said:

"I shall not hold you longer, gentlemen. You have deliberated long and earnestly, and I thank you for all that you have done."

After counsel on both sides had also thanked the jury the talesmen trooped back to the jury room for their suit cases. As they re-entered the corridor a marshal said he heard them say that they had stood 6 to 6 on Daugherty and 10 to 2 for conviction of Miller. Besieged by reporters, however, the jurors stated that they had pledged themselves not to tell what the standing had been.

Duress Had Been Charged.

The jury deliberation was marked by the illness last night of one juror, a shell-shocked war veteran, and the statement to the court of another that duress was being brought to bear upon the minority. Murray White, the veteran, had improved sufficiently to task to permit him to complete his task.

Daugherty and Miller both seemed quietly jubilant over the disagreement and Mrs. Miller, who has attended almost every session of the trial, smiled happily as she left the building with her husband.

United States Attorney Buckner, who prosecuted the case, said that he would not decide about a retrial for a month at least.

The former government officials were charged with conspiring against the government under inducement of "hypodermic injections of graft," applied by the late John T. King, Republican national committeeman from Connecticut.

Bonds Were Traced.

Richard Merton, German copper magnate, who came to this country to obtain release of the assets, testified at the trial that he paid King a fee of $441,000 to put his claim through government offices. It was alleged that King did this by passing part of his fee, paid in Liberty bonds, to Daugherty and Miller, "reaching" them through Jess W. Smith, Daugherty's political handymen. Of these Liberty bonds, the government traced $50,000 to Miller's brokerage accounts and $174,000 to the Midland National Bank of Washington Court House, Ohio, which was operated under the presidency of Mal S. Daugherty, the former Attorney General's brother.

PINCHOT URGES AID OF LEGION IN CLEAN ELECTION CAMPAIGN

Governor Tells Philadelphia Convention of Veterans Politics Needs Aid.

GET-OUT-VOTE PLAN
PRAISED BY COOLIDGE

Delegates From Capital Take Active Part in Sessions of National Body.

(From a Staff Correspondent.)
Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 11.—In a quiet, fragrant auditorium just inside the Sesquiennial grounds the American Legion met for its eleventh annual convention today.
The auditorium, a temporary structure, is a virtual tinder box and there were almost as many "no-smoking" signs as there were delegates and alternates.

The legionnaires answered the signs and the oral pleas with a scornful snort, and sent great clouds of smoke toward the rafters.
After that the oral pleas stopped, and the signs ceased to mean anything.

A message from President Coolidge, which was read by National Commander John R. McQuigg, praised the American Legion for its efforts to arouse the dormant voters of the country.

Pinchot Asks Help.
Gov. Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, in an address of welcome, called on the American Legion to step in and stop the "buying and stealing" of elections. These practices, he said, are not only prevalent in Pennsylvania and Illinois, but in many other States as well.

Commander McQuigg announced that the membership of the American Legion is now 653,229, an increase of 79,614 over 1925. Never since the legion has been organized, he said, has the public shown such an interest in the legion and such a willingness to cooperate with it in carrying out its aims.

The commander called attention to the work the legion has been doing in rehabilitation of veterans, child welfare legislation and in its nation-wide membership drive. The national rehabilitation committee, of which Watson B. Miller, of Washington, is director, handled more than 17,000 cases last year, he said, and recovered nearly $2,000, 000 for disabled veterans. The $6,000,000 endowment fund inaugurated in 1925 by Past National Commander James A. Drain, of Washington, he said has now been raised and invested.

Mrs. Eliza London Shepard, sister of the late Jack London, who is national president of the American Legion auxiliary, told the convention that the membership of the auxiliary is now 246,716, an increase of 44,542 over the highest membership for any previous year.
Wildor Metcalf, chairman of the legion's national finance committee, declared in his keynote speech, that the organization will always strive to make right the master of might, and will always stand for law and order.

Coolidge Praises Plan.
President Coolidge's message to the delegates follows:

"It is a real pleasure each year to testify to my high regard for the American Legion, and to my great appreciation of the services which were rendered to our country by its members.

"The past tense does not adequately express my feelings. For truly patriotic citizens the duties of peace are as vital as those of war. In a sense they are more so.
Shirkers in peace time are to be condemned as severely as slackers during war.

"I am particularly gratified to know that in cooperation with the national civic federation you are throwing the splendid resources of your organization into the important work of arousing our citizens to take part in elections. We can not retain our liberties under our representative form of government if we do not keep it representative. Too much stress can not be laid on the necessity of 'getting out the vote.'

"May you have abundant success in this and your other good civic works."

The distressing situation brought about by the action of the District of Columbia department in withdrawing recognition from the District auxiliary, was brought to the

City's Giraffe Outshines Feat of Humpty Dumpty

Animal En Route to National Zoological Park Balked Ingenuity and Efforts of 400 Men for Many Days.

Washington's giraffe has put Humpty Dumpty to shame. If "all the king's horses and all the king's men" couldn't mend the latter, it took two African sultans, 400 men and 100 huge nets, plus many hours of science and ingenuity, to lure the giraffe into captivity.

This is the impression gleaned from a letter received yesterday from Dr. William M. Mann, director of the Smithsonian-Chrysler live game-collecting expedition in Tanganyika territory. The letter is dated August 28 and describes the trials and tribulations of the giraffe hunt. At present both captor and captive are somewhere on the Mediterranean sea en route to America, where the animal will be turned over to the National Zoological park.

In telling of his pursuit for giraffe, Dr. Mann says:
"The one good way of getting giraffe is to run them down with horses and there are no horses here on account of the tsetse flies. The two sultans we had asked to help us came to camp with their men.
For days the men kept running, coming and going, about 400 being with us all the time. They had nets for game like coarse seines which are 20 feet long and 5 feet high.

"A hundred of these nets make a great line. After the nets are set the natives form a large circle about a herd of giraffe which has been located by our scouts, and attempt to drive them into the nets.
But they won't drive. Once out of attention of the national executive committee of the Legion today.

McQuigg detailed a committee to subcommittee to study the situation and bring in recommendations. It seems hardly likely that the Legion convention will recommend that the auxiliary's charter be revoked.

The District of Columbia delegation sat at a section in the auditorium well toward the front. Next to it was the Maryland delegation.
After the session was over the District delegates rushed out to join the national committee to which they have been assigned. Department Commander Amos A. Fries met with the military affairs committee and Post Commander William Mitchell with the committee on aeronautics.

Meanwhile the bugle and drum corps of the Vincent B. Costello post shined up for the big parade tomorrow. It is anxious to win the prize money for the best drum and bugle corps, and there are many here who think it will realize that ambition.
The McGroarty-O'Connell drum and bugle corps is expected to arrive from Washington tomorrow morning, together with strong reinforcements of marchers.

The convention was three-quarters of an hour late in getting started this morning. For an hour before the gavel fell, bands and drums corps paraded up and down the aisles, shaking the auditorium with a deafening din.

Mayor Takes Rostrom.
At 9:45 o'clock Comdr. Mc-Quigg pounded his gavel and the convention came to order. The invocation was said by the national chaplain, the Rev. William E. Patrick, of California, who was awarded a distinguished service cross for crawling into No Man's Land and giving succor to a wounded doughboy.

After Gov. Pinchot had finished speaking, the rostrum was taken by the mayor of Philadelphia, W.
Freeland Kendrick. When he had finished, the Colorado delegation presented him with a bear and a opossum, and then left him wondering what he was going to do with them.

The Florida delegation which is trying to get the 1928 convention was as noisy as it has been at other conventions, and as eager to advertise. Its members were touchy on the subject of the recent hurricane and sought to discourage any mention of it.

stop off in Washington after the convention.
Two American Legion organizations en route to the annual convention in Philadelphia, stopped over here yesterday and were received at the White House by the President. They were the Beaver Dam,
Wis., band of 50 pieces and the Fond du Lac drum corps of 65 pieces.

Representative Lampert, of Wisconsin, arranged for the White House reception. The Beaver Dam

Finance Minister's Villa Sealed by Tax Collector

Budapest, Oct. 11 (By A. P.).—M. Budd, minister of finance, recently returning home from a holiday, was thunderstruck to find himself locked out of his luxurious villa, which was sealed under government stamps by officers of the income tax department for failure to pay his taxes.

The chief tax collector of Hungary pleaded that he had not received assessment notices, but he was faced with the chief stenographer reply sent to all related taxpayers by his own services: "Pay first, then make your claim."

The minister paid the full amount and then started an investigation in his ministry to ascertain who was responsible for the failure to send him his tax bills.

Kenneth G. Ormiston, radio operator at Carmel, Calif., last May.

It was a confession by Mrs. Weisman recently that led to the conspiracy charges on which Mrs. McPherson, her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, and others, including Mrs. Weisman, are being given a preliminary hearing.

The State alleges Mrs. McPherson lived ten days at the Carmel cottage with Ormiston, following her mysterious disappearance last July, and that she attempted to manufacture false evidence in an effort to support her story that she was kidnapped.

Mrs. Weisman testified she entered the McPherson case in San Francisco, where she was employed as a stenographer, at the request of a "Mr. Martin," who is understood to be the man named in a "John Doe" warrant in the McPherson case. He has not been arrested.

Says Guilt Admitted.
Martin produced newspaper clippings about the McPherson case and said the evangelist must be cleared, Mrs. Siellaff testified. Martin then told her, she said, that "of course, it was Mrs. McPherson at Carmel; else, I would not want you to help."

The witness said she went to Los Angeles and met Mrs. McPherson and Mrs. Kennedy, telling them she knew the evangelist was not the woman at Carmel, and agreeing to make a statement.

Mrs. McPherson paid her $50 the day after her arrival, she testified. Mrs. Kennedy, telling them she knew the evangelist was not the woman at Carmel, and agreeing to make a statement.

Mrs. Weisman said she reported that a number of persons at Carmel were certain they saw the evangelist at the cottage and told Mrs. Kennedy she was sending East for the "little lady" to pose as the cottage woman.

Short Stay in Asylum.
Mrs. Weisman said she swore to an affidavit, one copy of which was sent by airplane mail to Mr. Martin, in Chicago. The affidavit stated that her sister was the woman at Carmel under the name of Mrs. McIntyre and that she (Mrs. Weisman) was attempting to "right a great wrong."

Mrs. Weisman waived all her legal rights as a co-defendant in the case in taking the stand.

She was permitted to testify over the protest of W. I. Gilbert, defense attorney, who declared he had documents to prove Mrs. Weisman had been confined in an insane asylum in Utah and never had been legally discharged as cured.

The witness admitted detention in an asylum, but said she had been held only until it was discovered she was the wrong person.

A. F. L. WITHHOLDS VOTE IN MOVEMENT TO BACK GOV. SMITH

Campaign for Presidency Not Under Way, Resolution Points Out.

BOYS URGED TO ATTEND ARMY TRAINING CAMPS

Convention Votes to Oppose Foes of the Direct Primary Election System.

Detroit, Oct. 11 (By A. P.).—Reaffirming its policy of non-partisan political activity, the American Federation of Labor convention voted unanimously today to avoid entanglements in the 1928 presidential campaign by withholding action on a resolution introduced by representatives of the New York State Federation of Labor, proposing endorsement of Gov. Alfred E. Smith, of New York, for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The convention approved without debate the report of its committee on resolutions on the Smith proposal, which pointed out that the country is not now in a presidential campaign and that Gov. Smith is not an avowed candidate for the Presidency.

The report recalled that Gov. Smith is a candidate for reelection as chief executive of the Empire State and that he had the endorsement of the New York federation for that office.

Text of Resolutions.
The text of the committee report on the resolution follows:
"The American people are not at present engaged in a presidential campaign. Gov. Alfred Smith is at present a candidate for reelection as governor of the State of New York. As such he has the support of the New York State Federation of Labor and of an overwhelming number of unorganized wage earners and citizens. If we are to maintain strict adherence to our non-partisan political campaign activities in presidential as well as other public official campaigns we must of necessity withhold the formation and expression of judgments until the opportunity and proper time presents itself no matter how appealing of friendly the person or persons involved may be."

"For these reasons your committee recommends the withholding of any action or expression upon this resolution in so far as it relates to any candidacy for President of the United States."

The convention devoted itself today, in the opening session of its second week, almost entirely to resolutions touching upon political problems.

Support Direct Primary.
A vigorous declaration of the federation's intention to wage unrelenting warfare against the foes of the direct primary system was voiced in a resolution indorsing the expression of the executive council report on the primary, submitted a week ago.

John P. Frey, president of the Ohio State Federation of Labor, addressed the ministers of Detroit in their regular weekly meeting today in the Central Y. M. C. A. building. He outlined the spiritual and social aims of the American federation emphasizing the part organized labor has played in the advancement of education.

Two resolutions denouncing citizens' military training camps as militaristic were rejected by the convention in favor of the expression contained in the executive council report that "it would be advantageous to all of the boys of our country to take advantage of

School Can Not Compel Use of "Gym" Bloomers

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 11 (By A. P.).—The daughter of the Rev. F. K. Smith, of Grand Island, can not be compelled to take gymnastics or to wear bloomers while doing so, Attorney General O. S. Spillman declared in an opinion today, the State legal department was informed.

The Grand Island school board had threatened to bar the girl from school because she had refused to take gymnastics work or to wear bloomers at "gym."

The wearing of bloomers as is required by the gymnasium classes, is the crux of the controversy, such apparel being against the religious belief of the Nazarene church clergyman.

The opportunity afforded them in these camps."

Reiterating the expression of previous conventions, the delegates unanimously approved a resolution urging a retrial in the case of Nicholas Sacco and B. Vanzetti, convicted in Massachusetts for murder.

Other resolutions approved today voiced opposition to any increase in postage rates of printed matter and urged establishment of a civil administrative for Porto Rico.

Max Hayes, of Cleveland, representing the International Typographical union, in speaking on the primary resolution urged the convention to form a new political party.

Grant came to this city to inaugurate the Centennial exposition celebrating the 100th anniversary of American independence. Today the grandson of the famous civil war leader, Maj. Ulysses Grant 3d, took a prominent part in the Sesqui-Centennial exhibition celebrating the 150th anniversary of independence.

Maj. Grant, who is director of public buildings and public parks in Washington, D. C., came here to take part in the exercises incident to the planting of thirteen trees in honor of the thirteen original American colonies.

Standing just behind the Liberty Bell in Independence hall, Maj. Grant told a large assemblage how Washington had shown its love both for trees and for the thirteen colonies. Early in its history, Maj. Grant said, the National Capital had named streets and roads after the thirteen colonies and had lined them with beautiful trees.

Two resolutions denouncing citizens' military training camps as militaristic were rejected by the convention in favor of the expression contained in the executive council report that "it would be advantageous to all of the boys of our country to take advantage of

U. S. HELP FOR EUROPE AWAITS STABILIZATION

Winston Says France, Italy or Belgium Could Obtain Loan in America.

SOUND POSITION IS NEAR

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 11 (By A. P.).—Assurance of American financial credit for Europe when it sets its house in order was given on behalf of the administration today by Garrard B. Winston, Undersecretary of the Treasury, speaking before the Bankers club, of Kansas City.

Stabilization must be obtained first by these governments, he said, but he predicted that "Europe would soon again be in a sound position" and stabilization be accomplished.

"If the time should come when credits are sought for the program of stabilization in France, Italy and Belgium," he continued, "or if it should be desirable to float a loan in this country, it would be clearly to our interests that this help be extended."

"Nothing is more productive than the money which puts a country on its feet financially. We in America have the money and with our large market abroad will benefit greatly through stabilization in Europe. These credits are not granted by the Treasury, but by the Federal reserve banks in connection with the banks of issue of other stable countries and by private American bankers."

Discussing the problems of European nations, particularly France, Italy and Belgium, Mr. Winston warned that "the time has come when each of these countries must decide whether it will destroy all values by unsound policies or put its house in order."

Valentino Relatives To Contest His Will

Los Angeles, Calif., Oct. 11 (By A. P.).—Contest of the will of Rudolph Valentino has been ordered by Albert and Marie Guglielmi, brother and sister of the film star, their attorneys announced tonight, following the appointment in court today of George Ullman, Valentino's former business manager as sole executor.

R. D. Knickerbocker, one of the attorneys for the Guglielmis said the effort to break the will center on the clause leaving the entire estate in trust to Ullman for the benefit of the two Guglielmis and Mrs. Teresa Werner, sister of Valentino's divorced wife, Natacha Rambova.

Husband and Artistic Career Constantly Clashing, Screen Star Admits Sadly.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—Constance Talmadge, looking somewhat downhearted, admitted today that it is difficult to have a husband and an artistic career. They are constantly clashing, so she sadly admits, she has separated from her latest husband, Capt. Alastair Macintosh, and that later there will be a quiet divorce.

"We have just agreed we can not live together," said Connie, "and we have separated as friends. I am going back to Hollywood to work on a new picture. I want a career more than I want a husband."

Constance Talmadge met Capt. Macintosh in Paris four years ago and was married to him in San Mateo, Calif., February 17 last. But at the end of seven months of matrimony she gives the same reason for the second separation that she gave when she divorced John Plogolou, wealthy New York importer—that she wishes to continue her screen career.

BLAIR ASKS COURT TO NULLIFY ORDER TO SHOW RETURNS

Contests Right of Lower Tribunal to Force Income Report in Suit.

OSTERLEIN COMPANY SEES INCONSISTENCY

Charge Commissioner Is Not Afraid of Secrecy Act; Under Advisement.

David H. Blair, commissioner of internal revenue, through District Attorney Peyton Gordon and his assistant, Leo Rover, and Charles T. Hendler, special assistant to the Attorney-General, and A. W. Gregg, general counsel for the bureau of internal revenue, appealed to the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, yesterday, from an order of the lower court, which, in their opinion, directed them to disobey one law in order to obey another.

The case involves threatened publicity in income tax returns, the last vestige of which, it is stated, was destroyed by the revenue act of 1926.

The lower court directed Mr. Blair to obey a subpoena issued by the board of tax appeals which required him to answer numerous questions concerning the tax returns of a dozen corporations engaged in a business similar to that of the Osterlein Machine Co., a concern which brought the case into court originally.

These corporations have no interest in nor are they a party to the Osterlein case, but the questions of law and fact involved are approximately the same because of the similarity of the business in which they are all engaged.

Contests Court Ruling.

Mr. Blair not only questions the authority of the board of tax appeals to require him to answer the questions contained in the subpoena under any revenue act, but he also contends that section 3167 of the Revised Statutes "prohibits them from disclosing or making public any part of the information set forth in an income tax return and an equity court can not, by mandatory injunction, compel him to violate that statute."

Measures, Hamilton, Miller, Sherrod and Chevalier, counsel for the Osterlein Machine Co., contended that the board of tax appeals has ample power, under laws creating it and vesting it with authority to determine tax appeals, to require the commissioner to explain his system of levying special assessments and to produce documentary evidence in support of his decisions. He is also said to be inconsistent in his position with regard to secrecy and counsel for the Osterlein concern did not hesitate to say that Mr. Blair is not always particular "whose eye is gored."

They state that "we would turn to another case pending in which the commissioner is apparently not afraid of these so-called secrecy provisions. It is the case of the Seishammer Paper Co., wherein government counsel introduced in evidence, after being reminded of the so-called 'secrecy' provisions, a list showing names, addresses, gross sales, invested capital, net income and officers' salaries of 105 corporations engaged in the paper business. And were it not for his notorious inconsistency in tax decisions, we would feel justified in labeling his fear of the secrecy provisions, as exhibited in this case, as advanced for effect only."

The case was taken under advisement.

Democrats Are Only Tax Hope, Gerry Says

Election of a Democratic Congress offers the only hope for real tax reduction, Senator Gerry, chairman of the Democratic senatorial committee, said in a statement yesterday. "Tax reduction for everybody, and especially for the man of moderate means and for the small corporation, is the main problem that depends on the Congress to be elected next month," he said.

Stillman Does Not Care If Society Ignores Bride

Mother Backs Choice of Backwoods Fiancee, Saying She Has Never, Sheep Fashion, Followed Leaders of Herd.

Special to The Washington Post.

Grand Piles, Que., Oct. 11.—Fashionable society of New York is reported to be recovering slowly from the shock it received last week when Mrs. Anne Urquhart (Pitt) Stillman, wife of James A. Stillman, banker, at her summer camp at Grande Acre, announced the engagement of her son, James A. Stillman, Jr., and grandson of James, the first, founder of the National City Bank of New York, to Lena Wilson, a native of the great North Woods country.

James, or "Bud" as he is known to his family, in confirming the news at Princeton, where he is a senior, snapped his fingers at so-called fashionable society and said he didn't care a rap whether members of high society took up the future Mrs. Stillman. He plans to marry the little backwoods girl, who has been employed at his mother's Canadian camp for the last five years, soon after his graduation next spring.

"I think mother and I feel very much the same on this subject," said the young man, who, to the Stillman millions and related to some of the most powerful families socially and financially in New York. He is a nephew of Mrs. Percy Rockefeller and of Mrs. William G. Rockefeller, both sisters of his father.

Comment on Society.

Mrs. Stillman today in backing up her son in his choice of a bride, made some pertinent comments on fashionable society as now constituted.

"I have no quarrel with what the papers are accustomed to term fashionable society," said Mrs. Stillman. "I am not now, and never really was, an intimate member of the charmed circle called smart society. That is to say, I have never, sheep fashion, followed the leaders of the fashionable herd."

"For some years I had a nice home in Newport and enjoyed the seasons there. I played bridge, I could be as happy on Grand street, New York, as on Park avenue; it is all in one's mental attitude."

"One will find people in Newport bored with life just as people lower down the social scale, but I enjoyed Newport because I did the things I enjoyed doing, not because of the number of fashionable entertainments I attended."

"I am happiest out of doors, swimming or playing golf or tennis. I don't play bridge, I never learned to play. I had a reason for this. Not being able to play, I would never be asked to take a fourth hand at bridge. Just fancy having a person who could command no more interest than an invitation to take a fourth hand at bridge."

"At the same time," continued Mrs. Stillman, "I have watched the women of Newport playing bridge on a hot summer afternoon, with no little interest. Personally, I should never care to pass a beautiful summer afternoon indoors, playing bridge."

Irked by Losses.

"As a rule, they played for high stakes. I am sorry to say, too, that they were never very well tempered about their losses."

"I don't deny I find considerable enjoyment in a splendid entertainment, the perfectly appointed table service, with its fine glass and silver and flowers, the beautiful gowns and jewels of the women and the excellent music and food and the lighter diversion such affairs lend to an otherwise rather sordid world.

"So-called society should be the crest of a wave, but society, or what we have become accustomed to call society, takes itself so seriously, so very seriously that it often causes me to smile."

"Newport, for instance, is beautiful and may be enjoyed, but such enjoyment to my mind is not to be found in the feverish manipulation of stocks and stacks of cards."

"As I have said, I have no quarrel with fashionable society, but I prefer the life of the free, whole, country. In New York I sometimes wonder if there is a God. I experience such a doubt up here."

Mrs. Stillman's four children, including Bud, share her indifference to fashionable society.

Only last week Mrs. Henry H. Davidson, only daughter of the Stillmans, whose husband is one of the heirs of the great fortune left by Henry P. Davidson, former member of the banking firm of J. R. Morgan & Co., returned to her fine Long Island estate after passing the summer in the great wilderness about the Stillman Quebec summer camp.

Tells of Simple Life.

Speaking of the atmosphere of the life in which her children have been reared in spite of the Stillman millions, Mrs. Stillman referred to Mrs. Davidson's preference for the simple, backwoods life.

"Mrs. Davidson has what society would call the essentials for happiness," said Mrs. Stillman. "Expensive cars, every facility for entertaining on a fine scale, fine clothes and many friends, yet she chose to come up here this summer where she found the greatest enjoyment in weeding the garden and in the simple diversions of fishing and camping."

"To my mind, the simple, natural things are most important. These are the things, too, that bring the greatest satisfaction. It is in the nature of children as well as grown-ups to prefer simple pleasures."

What children are not satisfied with these, it is usually the fault of the parents, who, by their example and standards, have encouraged in their children love for shiny baubles—jewelry and things of no real value. I think the cause of much of our unhappiness and unrest today is love for the nonessentials."

A sidelight on the inner circles of fashionable New York society was given by Mrs. Stillman when she recalled an incident in connection with her daughter's marriage a year ago.

"It was a country wedding," she said. "My daughter expected a great surprise when she discovered me getting out the fine family linen and silver and glass. 'Why, mother,' she said, quite shocked, 'nobody does that sort of thing to you. You know everyone has the caterer supply the linen and silver. They don't risk their precious linens and table service to careless visitors.'"

"I told her firmly that I intended to use the family service. I may say that no glasses were broken and no linen ruined. I wouldn't permit young people to make a picnic ground of my home."

REPUBLICANS SEEK TO CRUSH DONAHAY ON STATE EXPENSES

Declare Ohio Needs Governor to Watch Bung-hole as Well as Spigot.

ANTISALOON LEAGUE APPROVES OF COOPER

Dry Association, However, Looks With Strong Disfavor on Mills' Aspirations.

Special to The Washington Post.

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 11.—Away back in 1915 or thereabouts, when Vic Donahay, then serving as State auditor, disallowed an extra baked potato on the travel expense account of a supreme court judge, it was universally realized that he (Donahay, not the judge) was destined for higher things.

Consequently it occasioned no surprise when an aroused electorate, crying, "Down with the extra baked potato!" and all other superlatives, extravagances and excesses in public office, drafted the auditor of State expense accounts for governor and told him to go to it all along the line. Cheerfully did he respond and mightily and with much publicity did he lay about him with his pruning knife in two terms as governor.

Vic Donahay, according to his admirers, established a record for public economy before Calvin Coolidge was known to the shades of the sacred cod. In the case of Donahay, economy was an inherited, not an acquired, characteristic. He practiced it in his private life, as in his public life, as was illustrated when he went camping and fishing up in the north woods and took along a convict from the State penitentiary to do the cooking.

Vic modestly admits that he has accomplished much in protecting the public treasury from the depredations of the extra baked potato crowd, but, alas! There is still much to do, for which he will need another term while awaiting the call to still higher things in 1928.

Would Keep Him on Job.

The Democrats have voted to keep him on the job, but the unappreciative Republicans are seeking to put the good man down in the interest of a candidate of their own. Mr. Myers Y. Cooper—and what these Republican hater snatchers are saying about the young governor would grieve a far more ungrateful man. They say that while he has been speaking extra baked potatoes on the expense accounts, the plunderbund has been up to its elbows in the State treasury, and the cost of the State government has been running upon millions since Donahay became governor.

They say that what is needed is a governor who will pay as much attention to the bung-hole as to the spigot. Donahay has long been one of the darlings of the Antisaloons league, but as for the dry also, the league says it will be satisfied with either.

Not so in the case of the contest over the lieutenant governorship. The league becomes apoplectic when it considers Mr. James O. Mills, a rich, jovial restaurateur, who is the Republican candidate. Mr. Mills, it appears, has been convicted once or twice of violation of the Volstead act.

On one occasion his entire private store of liquors—pre, as well as post Volstead—was seized and confiscated. His opponent in the Republican primary was a State senator. A few days before the primary the league covered the boardings with this question: "Which do you prefer—the law-maker or the lawbreaker?"

The Republicans by a large plurality answered that they preferred the lawbreaker. As a result of which experience the confidence of the Antisaloons league in the virtues of the direct primary system has been jolted. And, conversely, others who have been prone to condemn the direct primary have been given pause.

Ponder on Question.

What caucus of the bosses in the good old days they ponder, who would have had the nerve to nominate a man convicted of law violation? But the plain people do not hesitate to nominate a Volstead law breaker by way of registering their opinion of the Volstead act. This incident lends additional interest to the question of the abolition of the direct primary which Ohio is to decide by referendum at the approaching election.

As required by law official arguments for and against the abolition of the direct primary have been issued. After stating the usual arguments that the direct primary secures rule by the people, the official argument for the other side says: "The primary system has made it impossible for a poor man to be a candidate for State office unless his campaign is financed by others, which is highly dangerous to the public interest. Eventually it must result in corruption and scandal."

"The primary has not resulted in a rule of the people. Few voters are east at the primary. Therefore, the politicians of a few big cities can get together and nominate a State ticket, as an unbroken line of experience has demonstrated."

"The primary has destroyed party responsibility. Under it there is no chance for party leaders to get together and consider the duties, responsibilities and opportunities of the party."

"The cost of the primary is one of the real burdens of the taxpayers. It has cost as high as $14 a vote in some localities, and the general average will be in excess of a dollar for every vote cast in the State."

Rail Men Will Back Willis And Donahay, Lee Asserts

Cleveland, Ohio, Oct. 11 (By A. P.).—Railroad brotherhood organizations will back the candidacy of Frank B. Willis, Republican, seeking reelection to the United States Senate, and Gov. A. V. Donahay, Democrat, candidate for a third term.

W. G. Lee, president of the brotherhood of railroad trainmen, made this announcement today. He said he spoke not only for his own organization, but for other railroad brotherhoods and allied fraternities.

2 ARE SLAIN, 3 SHOT WITH MACHINE GUN

O'Brien and the others killed or wounded were proceeding north on State street when it was overhauled and forced to the curb by a second car bristling with rifles and sawed-off shotguns.

As soon as the gangsters' car drew abreast, the guns began to blaze, while from an upstairs window of a flat building directly opposite the "rat-a-tat-tat" of the sputtering machine gun was heard.

The gun fire of the gangsters was directed on their victims for fully half a minute, after which the gangster car sped away and those operating the machine gun fled from the apartment building.

In the street Murray lay dead and Weiss dying, while O'Brien was able to crawl to the curb where he collapsed, while Pine and Jacobson limped away to find a doctor.

O'Brien Denies Being in Car.

At the hospital, O'Brien, before lapsing into unconsciousness, declared that he had just alighted from a street car when he was shot by unknown persons. He said he was not with the gangsters who were killed or wounded, but the police maintained all were together.

Weiss for years was a lieutenant of O'Brien, and after the latter was assassinated, he was associated with Vincent "Schemer" Drucel, and with Drucel recently was reported to have been a target of gangsters who ambushed Drucel on Michigan avenue. Drucel returned the fire, however, and was not hurt.

The police held several theories as to the motive for the slayings, all of them linked with the long gangland warfare and liquor feuds which have accounted for more than 100 victims within the last two years during the struggle for supremacy of the various gangs.

One theory was that Weiss and Murray were marked for death and that O'Brien simply happened to be present when they were ambushed and was an innocent victim of gangland warfare. Another was that O'Brien was the real target of the gang because rivals of Salts and Konec feared that O'Brien would involve them in his attempt to save his clients from the galleys.

Like Gun in McGinnis Case.

The machine gun found after the slaying was said to be similar to that used in the McGinnis case, the slaying of William McGinnis, assistant State's attorney, and known as the "hanging prosecutor."

McGinnis and two companions, who had been in the liquor trade, were shot to death with a machine gun operated by gangsters from an automobile when they went to Cicero, stronghold of Chicago gangland, last April. The killing of McGinnis and the operations of gang and liquor interests were subjects for investigation by five special grand juries, which also investigated election frauds in last April's primary.

About 200 indictments were returned in the election fraud cases and in one or two minor gang killings murder indictments were returned, but the McGinnis killing has remained unsolved.

O'Brien Makes Statement.

O'Brien rallied sufficiently to make a statement to police. "I got off a street car, and as I did so I heard a rat-a-tat-tat and felt a sting in my arm," he said. "Like a fool I turned around, but it is probably a good thing I did, for I would have got it in the face. All that I could hear was that continual rat-a-tat-tat. I ran down into a basement close by and bumped into another man I didn't know. We heard some more shooting, but after a while everything got quiet. A woman came down and told the other man to come up and that a doctor was waiting. I don't know where the shots came from; they seemed to come from everywhere."

O'Brien carried $1,500 in cash, and in Weiss' clothing were found money and checks amounting to more than $1,000. The landlady of the rooming house where the machine gun was operated said that two men who had a rear room had asked to be moved to a front room today. It was from this room that the machine gun was used.

Jury List in Pocket.

The effectiveness of the shooting was evidenced by the spattering of bullets against the Cathedral. The corner stone was pock-marked with bullets which partly obliterated the inscription reading: "A. D. 1874. In the name of Jesus every knee should bow—those that are in Heaven and those on earth."

A complete list of the jurors in the Salts-Konec murder trial was found in Weiss' clothes, lending credence to police theory that the possible result of evidence to be introduced at this trial prompted the shootings.

Both Pine and Jacobson told the police they were merely innocent bystanders who got caught in the jaws of the murderous trap laid for Weiss.

"This is not the end," Morgan Collins, chief of police, said. "More outrages may be expected anytime. It will continue until one gang faction or the other is wiped out. Weiss was at odds with Scarface Al Capone. Al Capone's joint in Cicero was fired on recently by machine gunners. This was a reprisal for that."

Minister Is Forcibly Ejected From School

INQUIRY BY SENATE INTO INDIANA KLAN IS URGED ON BORAH

Adams, Who Charges State Had Supergovernment, Makes Request.

STEPHENSON IS ORDERED BEFORE GRAND JURORS

Former Dragon to Be Taken From Prison to Tell of Graft Allegations.

(By the Associated Press.)

Senate investigation of the Ku Klux Klan in Indiana was requested yesterday in a telegram sent to Senator Borah, Idaho, by Thomas H. Adams, Vincennes, Ind.

Senator Borah requested information from Mr. Adams as to the operation of the Klan in Indiana. Replying to that request the Indiana editor said: "I believe this is a matter of such grave importance that the Senate should probe into the workings of the supergovernment of the invisible empire to show its marvelous scientific coordination, the basis of which was a supergovernment. The superpower of masked authority smacks of treason."

Stephenston to Be Heard.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 11 (By A. P.).—David C. Stephenston, former grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan and the central figure in the charges of political corruption brought by Thomas Adams, of the Vincennes Commercial, will be brought before the Marion county grand jury Thursday morning.

Judge James A. Collins, of the Marion criminal court, today issued the order for Stephenston's appearance at the request of William H. Remy, county prosecutor. Stephenston is serving a life sentence for the murder of Madge Oberholzer at Michigan city. The order was on the sheriff of Laporte county, who will serve it on Warden Walter Daly.

Judge Collins today instructed the grand jury to give its fullest consideration to charges of corruption in Indiana politics made by Adams. Judge Collins appointed Attorney General Arthur H. Gilliam and Ralph Kane to assist in the investigation. Will Remy, county prosecutor, requested their aid.

Corrupt Influence Charged.

Adams has declared in his charges that Stephenston exercised a corrupt influence on high political leaders. Kane, who was appointed as assistant to Remy today, was also assistant to the prosecutor in Stephenston's murder trial.

Adams will be called as a witness. Although Adams previously has expressed frank skepticism as to the thoroughness of a grand jury investigation, there were indications that he planned to cooperate with the authorities in the inquiry just started.

Gov. Jackson late last night decided that it would be unnecessary for him to appoint an investigating committee to inquire into the Adams charges. The governor took the position that the grand jury probe would be sufficient. This decision was made after a conference with Attorney General Gilliam.

WOMAN'S BODY, SHOT, ON HOSPITAL STEPS

Throat Also Bruised; Victim Clad in a House Coat and Fur-Trimmed Coat.

Chicago, Oct. 11. (By A. P.).—The body of a comely, blonde woman, probably 25 years, was found on the back steps of the German Deaconess hospital today. She had been shot through the left breast and the throat was bruised. The body still was warm when found.

The body was clothed in a house dress and a black fur trimmed coat. The police believed that the young woman had been carried alive to the hospital receiving door in hopes that she would be taken in for treatment.

The only mark of identification on the woman's clothing was the label of a St. Louis shoe manufacturing company, "Friedman-Shelby."

A waitress in a restaurant more than 2 miles from the hospital, told the police she recognized the body as that of an occasional patron.

French Financiers Confer in Germany

Berlin, Oct. 11 (By A. P.).—A French financial commission, headed by Ministerial Director Alphonse, arrived from Paris today.

It is believed that this body will be followed by another commission, headed by Louis Loucheur, having for its object the formation of an international electrical trust.

These moves are regarded as outgrowths of the recent get-together conference between the French and German foreign ministers at Thoiry.

LEADERSHIP PLACE FOR G. W. U. IN 1932, DR. LEWIS PREDICTS

University Aims for Coveted Role by Time Washington Bicentennial Arrives.

CITES RAPID PROGRESS
IN STUDENT ADDRESS

President Tells of Growth in Campus Activities; New Unit Planned.

"We hope in 1932 to see George Washington university second to no city university in the country and second to none of its kind in the world," declared Dr. William Mather Lewis before 2,500 students on the arts and science campus yesterday afternoon in the fourth annual roll call.

"Adopting this slogan we hope to celebrate the 200th anniversary of George Washington by new and larger buildings, and equipment to complete this quadrangle of buildings already started by asking the people of the United States to contribute $2,000,000, one for buildings and one for endowment," declared Dr. Lewis.

The university president pointed out to the student body that in three years since the first roll call both Stockton and Corcoran halls had been erected, that a new gymnasium had been constructed, that the medical school had been entirely renovated, that new office buildings for professors and administrators had been obtained and that new buildings for women had been acquired.

Student Body Active.

Dr. Lewis pointed out the vast strides made in student activities in the gym clubs, debating societies, in athletics and the various publications run by students and noted that the entire activity program, wholly supported by students, was on a paying basis. The athletic program was outlined to the students gathered and the keynote of the accomplishments were on the trend of activity toward a greater university.

Dr. Lewis announced to the students that $75,000 had been raised toward the erection of the third hall to be placed at Twenty-first and H streets and that he hoped it would be started and completed before the next year. The president pointed to other advances made by the institution in the past three years, made possible by the cooperation of students, faculty, alumni and members of the board of trustees of the institution as well as the public at large.

Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty spoke of the vast advantages offered the students of George Washington in coming to this city as a great educational and scientific city. The commissioner dwelt upon the resources of the Nation's Capital for research and study in art, architecture and science. He pointed to the splendid accomplishment of the university since it became George Washington in name in 1909.

The speakers at the fourth annual roll call were introduced by Rolla M. Carter, of the law school, George and Martha Washington in costume were represented by Vincent Stubbs and Margaret Malze. Both greeted the new students and spoke of the opportunities offered to strengthen themselves as well as the university.

During the program the Army band played several selections. The speakers were frequently applauded and cheered. Following the program at the university the student body marched downtown through the streets by the White House, through the business section and returned to the institution.

A "pep" meeting was held in Corcoran hall later in the evening, at which time various student leaders spoke to the freshmen.

WOMAN SHOT IN LEG ON NIGHT OF SLAYING

at 2 o'clock, several hours after Miller's body was discovered.

The woman asked for "Private Miller." When told that Miller was dead the voice asked, "Are you sure he is dead? Where did you find the body?"

Military authorities are anxious to know why the woman was so interested in where Miller's body was found. They believe this woman may know the motive back of Miller's slaying.

The investigators were told yesterday another version of how Johnson and Miss Gray were shot. Almost every day either Johnson or Miss Gray tell police a different story of how they were attacked. First they said they were riding a motorcycle when two soldiers jumped from behind some bushes along the Military road and fired at them. Next Johnson said they were sitting in the grass when he heard footsteps, got up to see what it was all about and was shot for his trouble.

Now the police are told that Miss Gray and Johnson were both shot while they were sitting in the grass.

DYE SALE SUSTAINED BY SUPREME COURT

no provision for compensation, and therefore the owners have no claim for compensation.

The court declared the inevitable conclusion must be reached that the President had power to authorize the sale and the alien property custodian to make it.

Justices Stone and Sutherland did not participate in the opinion, presumably because of former positions held in the government that brought them in touch with the matter. Stone is a former Attorney General, while Sutherland once represented Utah in the Senate.

Borah Sees Greater Need Of Inquiry After Dye Ruling

(By Associated Press.)

Senator Borah (Republican), Idaho, feels that the Supreme Court decision yesterday, upholding the sale of seized German dye patents by the alien property custodian to the chemical foundation, gives added reason for investigation of the custodian's office.

He indicated that, if the inquiry were undertaken, Harry M. Daugherty and Thomas F. Miller, a former custodian, would be among the first witnesses summoned. The senator is chairman of a special Senate committee to investigate the office, but has been unable to proceed because no funds were appropriated.

Asserting he did not care to comment upon the outcome of the Daugherty-Miller trial in New York the senator, however, said that our whole record in reference to the administration of alien property is a sorry one.

"We have been foremost among the nations," he asserted, "in advocating the protection of private property against the ravages of war and against confiscation. It is now eight years since the war and we still hold this property from its owners. It has amounted to confiscation to the hundreds of owners. Some of the instances of injustice and injury are beyond belief. It is no wonder that individuals look upon this property as legitimate prey. The more speedily we clean up this mess and do as near justice as we can the sooner we will give some evidence of living up to our professions."

COMMITTEE PRAISED FOR WORK DURING YEAR

Convention Advertising Lauded; Announce Gift to Florida Relief Fund.

John F. Maury was unanimously elected president of the Washington real estate board for the ensuing year at the board's annual meeting at Wardman Park hotel last evening. The attendance at this meeting was the largest in the history of the organization. W. C. Miller was elected first vice president, and Ben T. Webster, second vice president.

These officers, together with the following newly elected members, will form the board's executive committee for the ensuing year: Clarence F. Donohoe, Claude Livingston, and Jesse H. Hedges.

The newly elected members of the appraisal committee are H. Clifford Banks, George Calvert Bowie, Arthur Carr, Clarence Dodge, William A. Hill, William J. Plather, Jr., and J. Dallas Grady. Clarence F. Donohoe, the retiring president, thanked the board for its wonderful cooperation in making the past year the most successful year in the history of the board.

Committees Praised.

James P. Schick, executive secretary, in making his annual report, of the board during the past year, and praised the work of the legislative, municipal regulation and appraisals committees, and dwelt largely on the advance of real estate, education and the advancement of the real estate profession in general. The appraisal committee appraised property valued at $10,376,000 during the past year, the largest in the board's history.

Forty-one active members were admitted during the year. The board had the largest financial surplus at the end of the present year in its history. A great deal of time was spent in analyzing the better homes show to be held at the auditorium by the board next week. Two new divisions were formed during the year, the sales managers' division and the property managers' division.

Arthur Carr and W. Gilbert Dent praised the work of the Washington convention bureau in bringing the National Capital to the front as a convention center, and the best residential city in the world.

The board at its last executive meeting made a substantial contribution to the Red Cross for its relief work in Florida.

The meeting was followed by an entertainment and a buffet supper.

PHYSICIANS FAVOR SURE PUNISHMENT TO HALT CRIMINAL

Resolution Against Lawless Follows Plea for Treatment Instead of "Revenge."

ENGLISH PLAN CITED
AS CHECKING CRIMES

Coddling of Convicts and Sympathetic Officials Blamed for Present Failure.

Certain and inescapable punishment by law was recommended as a means of checking crime by physicians attending the convention of the Eastern Homeopathic Medical association, which began yesterday at the Washington hotel.

The recommendation was made in reply to a paper by one of the speakers, in which punishment was branded as "revenge," and it was proposed that "individual study and assistance" be substituted, involving a study and treatment of criminals as mental defectives.

Following the paper, Dr. Charles Bennette, of Waterloo, Iowa, declared that sure punishment has an educational influence, since it presents to the mind of the criminal a conception of the magnitude of his offense in a form which he will understand.

"I would recommend no method of dealing with criminals which is kept down, and the reason is that punishments are sure. If a man kills another he knows he will hang. Hanging prevents killing in that country, and in doing so it excludes an educational function, and is not a matter of revenge." Dr. H. L. Klopp, of Allentown, Pa., presented the paper urging the examination of criminals for mental troubles and the individual treatment of the cases according to the peculiar circumstances of each.

Papers were presented in the afternoon on "Rickets," by Dr. Frank P. Eklings, of Paterson, N. J., on "Digestive Dysfunction in Children," by Dr. J. T. Simonson, of New York, both in the bureau of pediatrics. Other papers presented in the bureau of neurology were "The Sequelae of Epidemic Encephalitis," by Dr. Wilson; "Why People Become Nervous," by Dr. F. W. Seward, of Goshen, N. Y., and also a paper by Dr. J. A. Holland, of Trenton, N. J.

A clash on the value of milk as a food occurred when Dr. Bennette took issue with a statement by Dr. Simonson that milk fed to "children from 2 to 10 years," and to adults, is an "abomination," and "both unfit and dangerous."

Dougherty in Greeting.

Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty welcomed the delegates at a public health meeting last night. Mr. Dougherty recited briefly a history of the trials which resulted in the Capital being located here.

Dr. Arthur W. Belling, of Trenton, N. J., president of the American Institute of Homeopathy, spoke on "The Homeopathic Physicians Place in Modern Medicine." Dean William A. Pearson, of the Hahnemann Medical college, of Philadelphia, gave an address on "Public Health Value of the Physician."

Miss Nina Norman, of this city, sang, accompanied by Miss Estelle Wentworth.

AT THE DANGER LINE.

Gen. Pershing gives warning that the army has been cut down to the danger point. It now consists of 110,000 men, and the number will be still further reduced, on account of the lack of funds for subsistence. Congress made appropriations calculated to provide for 118,000 men, but the calculations went awry on the cost of subsistence, and the War Department is compelled to reduce the force. Gen. Pershing urges the maintenance of a well-disciplined nucleus of a national army, and suggests that a choicest policy in peace time might force the expenditure of billions in case of a sudden emergency. His commonsense advice is to keep prepared, at moderate expense, and thus avoid the extravagance that would surely be repeated if the country should be in an unprepared condition when confronted by war.

An emergency arose only a few years ago, since the war, when the movement of troops to strategic points was advisable, and Gen. Pershing discovered and reported to President Harding that there were not sufficient troops to accomplish what was desired. The less said about this incident the better; and it is referred to now merely to emphasize the fact that domestic and foreign emergencies can not be foreseen. The United States should always have at its disposal sufficient men to maintain domestic tranquility, and as a nucleus for an army sufficient to defend the country against any foreign enemy. Gen. Pershing now gives warning that the army has reached the point below which it can not go without most serious results.

The warning uttered by this patriotic and disinterested soldier, who knows whereof he speaks, deserves the careful attention of President Coolidge and Congress, to the end that the army may be increased without delay to at least 118,000 men.

YOUNG OLD MEN.

Does constant physical or mental activity, or both, increase longevity? Supposing Elbert T. Gary had quit the game at 60; or suppose Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes had retired 20 years ago; or that our own Dr. Harvey Wiley had decided at threescore and ten to let the laboring oar slip from his grasp—would either of these great Americans, distinguished in entirely different fields of professional and business life, find themselves, respectively at 80, 82 and 85, as mentally alert and physically active as they appear to be?

We hear a lot nowadays about this being "an age of young men," that "youth must be served," but is it not rather the age of old men remaining young? This observation is inspired by the recent eightieth birthday anniversary of Judge Gary, who celebrated it by putting in a strenuous day at the offices of the United States Steel Corporation, quitting at 5 o'clock, unwearied by the excitement, still the man of "cheerful yesterdays and confident tomorrows," entering another decade wholly capable, in the opinion of his associates, of continuing as the directing force of the great business enterprise which he has created.

It is better to wear out than to rust out. There comes to every one the time when the physique breaks under the strain of the years and the mental forces are less active and responsive. But this stage is reached, it seems, much later in life than formerly. And this can not be because men put in less hours a day or work fewer years. It may be that constant application of the mental and physical powers has solved the riddle of longevity. Of course, when one considers the dimensions of life, length alone is not important. It is recorded that the days of Methuselah were nine hundred and sixty and nine years; "and he died." No accomplishment is set down; we are told only that he lived and "died." No man can hope to find a place in the annals of his time who merely lives and dies. The indications seem to be that one way for man to lengthen his days and preserve and perpetuate his energies is by keeping everlastingly on the job.

WHAT PRICE CLEANLINESS?

If indeed "cleanliness is next to godliness" the American people must be far ahead of the rest of the world on the road to spiritual perfection for in what other country was the enormous sum of $340,167,000 paid out last year for "laundry work"? Big as that sum looms, it does not represent, by any means, the total cost of cleanliness.

The census bureau is authority for the figures which indicate that between 1919 and 1925 the amount received by the power laundries of the United States increased approximately 44 per cent, reaching $340,167,000 in 1925.

If to these figures were added the amounts accumulated by Ah Sin, Charley Wong and their celestial brethren, as well as by the French and ordinary American "hand laundries" which flourish in many cities, it is likely that the total cost of laundry work will reach $500,000,000 annually. There is a very large section of the population, urban as well as rural, which "does its own washing," and if the value of this labor were added to the sums paid to laundries and washerwomen, it would probably show that the cost of cleanliness approximates $15 per annum for every man, woman and child of the 110,000,000 of the population.

ITALY AGAINST WAR.

The Post has received the following communication from the Italian Ambassador:

I am in a position to deny in the most formal way the rumors published in a London paper that Italy intends to attack the Turkish republic. Such rumors are absolutely absurd and misleading. The foreign policy of my country is decidedly pacific and contrary to any disturbance of world peace.

It is well that the Italian government should thus officially put the stamp of untruth upon the rumor in question, inasmuch as many individuals may have been misled by it. But a moment's consideration would disclose the falsity of the report, even if it were not denied. The report is that Italy and Greece have secretly combined to make war on Turkey, and that Greece is to have Smyrna as a reward, while Italy seeks to conquer Adalia and the hinterland allotted to her in the secret treaty with the allies in 1915.

The idea of an alliance between Italy and Greece is absurd, in view of their conflicting interests during and following the war. Italy herself expected to take Smyrna in case of the defeat of Turkey, and it is said that Smyrna was allotted to Italy at a conference in Savoy in 1917, attended by Mr. Lloyd George, Baron Sonnino and M. Ribot. When Greece was asked by President Wilson, Mr. Lloyd George and M. Clemenceau to occupy Smyrna in 1919, there was profound indignation in Italy, and the newspapers were full of allegations that this was Mr. Wilson's method of punishing Italy for refusing to accept his plan relating to Fiume. Italy's subsequent brush with Greece at Corfu, after the murder of Italian commissioners in Albania, was anything but conducive to the rapprochement that must precede an alliance.

The chief fact which belies the London rumor, however, is Premier Mussolini's practical common sense. He is engaged in the great work of consolidating the Italian people into a harmonious and prosperous economic union. This work would be destroyed in a twinkling if he should engage in an aggressive foreign war. He could rally the fascisti, no doubt, but with what resources? Whence would come the sinews of war—from Greece? Surely Great Britain, France and Germany have no money to loan for war enterprises. As for the United States, its adventures in loaning money have not been so happy as to develop the fixed habit of financing wars.

Premier Mussolini is having difficulty enough in paying the debt incurred during the last war without seeking additional encumbrances. He knows the international financial situation as well as anybody. He has the best of reasons for avoiding war and for opposing any disturbance of world peace.

GOOD BUSINESS CONDITIONS.

If department stores are any criterion, business in the country is decidedly good. Preliminary reports to the Federal Reserve Board indicate that in all sections retail trade for the month of September was considerably larger than during the same month last year. Five hundred and nineteen department and retail stores report sales 6.5 per cent greater than last September, two mail-order houses report a gain of 8.8 per cent, and five chains of 5 and 10 cent stores are slightly over 10 per cent better off than they were last year.

Greatest improvement was noticed in the Chicago Federal Reserve district, where 57 stores did a business 12.3 per cent larger than in 1925. The 77 stores in the San Francisco district follow with a percentage of increase slightly greater than 10. The Richmond district, which includes Washington, although at the bottom of the list, shows a gain of 2.6 per cent.

Although department stores in this district have not shown great increases, satisfaction may be gleaned from examination of the figures recently made public by the bureau of labor statistics, regarding new building in Washington. The per capita expenditure for the first six months of 1926 was $56.41 for residential construction, which average, examination of the local records will disclose, has been approximately maintained during the last three months. Washington stands about seventh in the country for building construction of all sorts, but the per capita expenditure for residential construction is exceeded only by Yonkers, Los Angeles and New York city.

THE VETERANS' BUREAU.

The convention of the American Legion at Philadelphia yesterday was made memorable by the address delivered by Gen. Frank T. Hines, director of the United States veterans' bureau. From the nature of the case, no organization, no body of citizens, is more interested in the successful working of the veterans' bureau than is the American Legion, and it was a record of success all along the line that its members listened to yesterday, as Gen. Hines stood before them and gave an account of his stewardship. The changes recently made by Congress in the basic law governing the bureau and its operations have all been of a liberalizing tendency, and it is quite evident that the director and his splendid corps of assistants have made the most of the leeway thus given them in caring for the wounded, maimed and disabled servants of the nation. Under the four general headings of medical service, compensation, insurance and rehabilitation, Gen. Hines had a message of cheer—of progress in the past and of hope for the future—to communicate.

Not only in point of activities engaged in but also of money disbursed, the veterans' bureau has rapidly become one of the largest, as it is undoubtedly one of the most important, of the agencies of government. The magnitude of its operations may be inferred from the fact that the net total spent by the bureau itself already amounts to $2,700,000,000, and that its future obligations, as they now exist, comprise $1,300,000,000 in term insurance active awards and $3,100,000,000 in adjusted compensation awards, as well as a continuous disbursement of some $13,500,000 each month in compensation payments. These are staggering sums. That they should be controlled and directed by one man is, in itself, a tribute as could be wished for to the financial genius of which Gen. Hines has long since proved himself to be the possessor. His explanation of the various undertakings on behalf of the veterans was necessarily technical in the extreme, and yet he made each point so plain to his hearers as to show that he is a master of analysis. That he is also a master of synthesis and gifted with a constructive mind emerges plainly from the plans which he announced for the future.

One of the finest features of the work of the bureau, and one that will win the enthusiastic approval of the American people, is the liberal and humane consideration which it brings to bear on its many problems and on every case to which its attention is directed. Neither in the person of the director himself nor in the person of any of the various members of his loyal staff has the man been lost in the official. In the interpretation of the law the policy of the bureau is to stretch a point whenever possible, to give a little more rather than a little less, and to afford prompt and adequate relief, on the principle that service which does not meet an emergency as it arises is not efficient service. When economies have been brought about in the bureau, they have been mainly in the direction of eliminating waste, and have never been practiced at the expense of the beneficiaries.

Under the direction of Gen. Hines, the veterans' bureau has a splendid record of achievement, and it faces the future with a confidence begotten of duty discharged not only faithfully but also to the complete satisfaction of the nation.

DEAD LETTERS.

The annual report of the Postmaster General is expected to contain at least one chapter devoted to the work of the dead letter office. It will be shown how many million pieces of mail matter were consigned to the dead letter office because they were badly wrapped, improperly addressed, or not addressed at all.

The Postmaster General might save his dead letter office a great deal of worry and work if he would suggest to his subordinates, the postmasters throughout the country, that it is within their power to curtail to a very large degree the unnecessary work of that office. In the museum of the department there was preserved for many years—and it may be there still—an envelope on which was an English postage stamp. The address was plainly written "Mrs. Blank, Hornewigler, Hornewigler County, America." It went to the dead letter office, but did not remain there many hours. The letter reached Mrs. Collins, who was the recognized expert decipherer of "blind addresses." "Why," exclaimed Mrs. Collins, "that's the easiest one I ever had. The letter comes from England; ergo, the 'H' is superfluous. Take off the first letter of the town and county and we have Oswego, Oswego county, badly spelled, it is true, but phonetically plain; and as there is only one city in a county which sounds like Hornewigler it belongs in New York State. We will ask Mrs. Blank to send back the envelope." Mrs. Blank complied with that request, and that's how the postoffice museum was enriched.

But there are few Mrs. Collins among the clerks in the postoffices of today, and this accounts for the fact that a bunch of letters addressed to Bismarck, Grand Forks, Devil's Lake and other well-known Western towns to which the careless typist had added "N. C." instead of "N. D.," were all sent back stamped "No such office in State named." Mrs. Collins would have "tried North Dakota."

It is because of the repetition of incidents like this on so many occasions that the dead letter office gets more than its share of "improperly addressed" mail matter. Possibly if Mr. New can induce his subordinates to establish a "merit system" under which the sorter who uses his brains as well as his eyes would be credited for his intelligence—with promotion as a possible reward—the result would enable the head of the department to curtail his annual warning against carelessness.

KOSCIUSZKO RECOGNITION DAY.

The Kosciuszko celebration to take place in Washington on October 13, under the auspices of a distinguished committee headed by Charles E. Hughes, serves to inform us that there are now twelve graduates of Polish universities who are enjoying scholarships in leading American universities as a result of the efforts of the Kosciuszko Foundation, which is cooperating in the forthcoming observance of Kosciuszko recognition day. One graduate of an American university has been given similar privileges in Poland, and others will follow.

Although Kosciuszko's position as one of the national heroes of the revolutionary period rests principally upon his career as a soldier and an engineer, he was also beloved by Gen. Washington and his associates in the colonial forces, for his strength of character, his modesty and his sincere friendliness. These traits are mentioned in more than one official report by Washington and his generals to Congress and to each other.

The fact that Kosciuszko, upon departing from America, drafted and signed a will in which his American property was to be sold under the direction of his friend Thomas Jefferson for the purchase, liberation and suitable education of negro slaves, gave proof that the Polish-American patriot was also instinctively a humanitarian. The Kosciuszko Foundation, which is headed by President Henry Noble MacCracken, of Vassar college, in establishing the exchange of scholarships between the Polish and American universities as a living memorial to one of America's earliest and most effective friends, seems to have found an adequate and fitting manner in which the nation's gratitude and respect may be paid.

You're not really a fanatic unless you get mad when the opposition seems to talk sense.

PRESS COMMENT.

Proof Conclusive.

Baltimore Sun: Stewards of the Camerona, transatlantic liner from Glasgow, offer unimpeachable testimony that Americans are doing their utmost to aid in the rehabilitation of Europe. The stewards say that Americans are liberal with tips on the eastward passage; but home-ward bound "they are mostly broke and the tip ranges from $1 up." This proves the case. If Scotch stewards admit that passengers have spent all their money and are justified in giving small tips; it must be so.

Checking Crime.

Charlotte Observer: Capital punishment seems to obtain quite effectively in the State of Florida. Gov. Martin has signed as many as five death warrants at one sitting, the executions to be spread over the next four months. A circumstance of interest is that executions in Florida for criminal assaults on women are by hanging; those for murder by electrocution.

Momentous Step.

Philadelphia Record: If the Federal government loans $30,000,000 to the cotton planters of the South, who have been hard hit by the depressing effect on prices of the remarkably large crop, how can it consistently refuse to extend similar aid to the wheat growers of the Western States? President Coolidge has taken a step that may have momentous future consequences.

Father.

Atchison Daily Globe: Father is about to come into his rest period. After he puts up the storm doors and windows all he will have to do until the spring garden is ready for seed is to fire the furnace; carry out the ashes, shovel snow off the walks, and incidentally to earn the family living.

Peace Without Victory.

Louisville Courier-Journal: The British coal strike that has lasted five months and cost $2,000,000,000 is virtually over, due to the return of the miners to the pits. It has solved nothing. The victory is one of attrition. There is little cause for jubilation.

Jay-Jumper.

Boston Transcript: He has been called the jay-walker, but his manner of dodging deals in the traffic suggests that jay-jumper would be the more appropriate term.

The New Order.

Ohio State Journal: About the only real difference woman suffrage seems to have made in our established institutions is hostesses and assistant hostesses at political meetings.

Hasn't Helped Matters.

Portland Oregonian: A Berlin professor declares that the ape is descended from man and not man from the ape. We can see where this fellow has helped matters much—for the ape.

The Wise Presbytery.

Brooklyn Daily Eagle: Wise is the Presbytery of New York for refusing to get into "dry" politics, though favoring law enforcement. Dignity is the very essence of Presbyterialism, here and abroad.

Without Any Instrument.

New Orleans Times-Picayune: A Frenchman has invented a device that indicates the velocity of the wind by sound. Over here one can stand on any street corner and the velocity of the wind will be indicated by sight.

Houston Post-Dispatch: Prompt action by local State and Federal health authorities has in all probability saved storm-swept Florida from experiencing disease epidemics. Following the disaster, the

Poverty

By ROBERT QUILLEN

IT IS commonly believed that all Americans are shortening their lives by reason of haste. Few realize how little haste there is behind closed doors.

Nearly all Americans work for a living. They scurry to and from their work at a mad pace, but when they reach the shop or the office or the factory, they slow down.

Not many years ago a man boasted of the amount of work he could do in a day. He was making a virtue of necessity. He had to work fast or get fired for "soldiering."

Now machines do the work and men can move at a slower pace and keep up the output. When the day is done they have energy enough to dress and take the family out for an evening's entertainment.

Machines are not wholly responsible for the slower pace. Men are no longer afraid of the boss. They are unafraid because better wages have given them self-respect and stiffened their backbones.

And yet nearly all of these workers, despite short hours and good wages, feel poor. They seem poor, of course, when their possessions are compared with those of the boss; but they are very well to do as compared with the workers of yesteryear.

Old timers who were honest craftsmen can remember when the underclothes of the children were made of flour sacks; when dad wore patches on his best pair of pants; when mother made over last winter's dress; when a penny was spending money for anybody under 15 years of age.

That was poverty of the kind that made workers bitter or humble. It hurt all the way to the marrow of the soul.

There are many poor today—people who are relatively poor. But their daughters wear silk stockings; the head of the house has a new hat each season; the man of the family wears no patches that show, and he looks the world squarely in the eye, all prepared to tell it where to head in. There is a radio, and good furniture bought on the installment plan; and three times a day there are such meals as the poor of other days knew only in their dreams.

Poverty is relative. Four cylinders may seem an indication that one is hard up if the neighbor's car has eight. But now, and always, plenty is riches. A full stomach is full, whether the man surrounding it has much or little.

situation was favorable especially for the development of typhoid fever. But preventive medicine came into the field immediately, and as yet there is no indication that the districts that suffered from the hurricane will see any decline in health conditions.

Drown Them?

Trenton State Gazette: The small town of Wallasey, in Cheshire, England, is concerned over the problem of its 2,000 surplus women. China has a very effective, although rather ruthless, method of dealing with this problem, but, of course, we are too gallant to suggest its adoption by Wallasey.

A Popular Idea.

Philadelphia Inquirer: Some people seem to have the idea that an amendment should be the most vigorous part of a constitution.

London Fog a Myth?

J. Fred Essary in Baltimore Sun: For my own part, I have spent one whole winter in London and parts of another without witnessing a fog of the old "bleak house" darkness and pungency or anything approaching it.

Too Busy to Smile.

New York Sun: Foreigners of observant habit say New Yorkers do not smile. Perhaps we are too busy speculating as to the revelations of our deficiencies the observant foreigners among us are going to make.

The Real Dictator.

Buffalo Courier and Express: The coal strike in Great Britain is fading away. As between necessity and principle, the former wins every time.

Right at Last.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: If the United States Shipping Board knew shipping as well as it knows human nature it would not have to sell the Leviathan and the rest of its passenger ships. The board announced a meeting in St. Louis October 7.

They Are the Newspaper.

Chicago Tribune: The men who make the newspapers—who gather the news, set it in type, manage its business affairs, direct its editorial policy, solicit its advertising—are the newspaper. Their characters and personalities are in the newspaper and the ink. It is a problem much discussed among newspapermen as to how great journals shall be perpetuated. There is only one way—through the men who make them.

A Strange Character.

Philadelphia Ledger: Prince Asani, of Bangkok, passing through Chicago on his way to Harvard, where he is to be a student, refused to be photographed, refused to comment on American girls and did not ask to be taken to the stockyards. Very evidently an original young cuss.

Safety First.

Ohio State Journal: We have candidates about whom we never feel safer than when they are reviewing parades, with the band playing so loud that, even if they should decide to make a few remarks, no one would hear them.

Sad Reflection.

Kansas City Star: It is sad to reflect that most of the friction since the armistice of 1918 has risen over peace and disarmament programs.

Vanishing Visitors.

Springfield News: As the cash registers cease to jingle so merrily, Europe will soon understand what is meant when one refers to "the vanishing American."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

The Coolidge Foundation Concerts.

To the Editor of The Post:—Sir: The beauty of the rendering of the pieces at last week's festival was such as Washington should be thankful for, but by some strange chance Saturday evening's program contained a hideous and weird combination of noises, which would require a very great stretch of the imagination to be honored by the name of music. This was a quartet by Luc Balmer. It was Brahms who said, "If we can not write any longer with the beauty of Mozart, let us try to write with as much purity." Dr. Hans Heiter said of Strauss' Domestic Symphony, "It is a torture to ears," and the same may be said of the first movement of this quartet.

But after this eccentric cacophony, there were compensating moments which were worth waiting for in the last movement. These consisted of several brilliant flashes of silence and the heavenly beauty of a major common chord at the close. GEORGE MIDDLETON.
Washington, Oct. 11.

Boost!

To the Editor of The Post:—Sir: The writer, some years ago, was a member of a volunteer fire company in Baltimore county, Md., and had various experiences with fires before coming to reside in Washington. I am, therefore, much interested in the efforts here during fire protection week. As a subscriber and admirer of your paper, I am sending you copy of some verses, entitled "Boost," which were printed after the great fire in Baltimore in 1904, in which I was able to take an active part.

I feel sure you can use these words to advantage now and hope you will do so.
I am a "shut-in" at present but feel I can use my pen "two miles publico." J. COLLIN VINCENT.
Washington, Oct. 8.

Boost your city, boost your friend, Boost the lodge that you attend. Boost the street on which you're dwelling, Boost the goods that you are selling, Boost the people round about you; They can get along without you, But success will quicker find them, If they know that you're behind them.

Boost for every forward movement, Boost for every new improvement, Boost the man for whom you labor; Boost the stranger, and the neighbor.

Cease to be a chronic knocker; Cease to be a progress blocker; If you'd make your city better, Boost it to the final letter.

EVIL OF THE PRIMARY.

Six United States senators have met defeat for re-nomination this year, the largest number since nominations by popular vote has been required, says W. G. Sibley, in Chicago Journal of Commerce. One meaning of this is that experience in office, the most valuable teacher of all public men, is not valued as highly by the populace at large as trucking to their prejudices and transient political emotions. It is a popular belief that a senator should follow a passing wave of opinion in his State, and register them all in his votes in the Senate. As a matter of fact, being better informed than the mass of his constituents as to what will best promote the general welfare, he should not hesitate to go contrary to their desire when it is wrong, after telling them why it is wrong. We select our representatives as men better qualified than we to legislate, but under the primary system invite capable and sound men in office to the guillotine of ignorant prejudice, and so exalt demagogues.

Home Efficiency Service

WILL Miss E. Black please call me on the telephone. I fear you are quite wrong. "Polly Prim," in spite of the claim you may have to the latter part of the name that you have chosen to be used for your answer through the column. "Cutting in" is a custom that was established not many years ago and that grew in popularity during the period of the war. Cards at dances are almost obsolete although they may still be encountered at an occasional private dance or in out of the way localities. The gentleman in question was quite within his rights, in spite of the fact that you wished so desperately to dance through the dance with the gentleman who danced so beautifully. I am not surprised that he was exceedingly annoyed and it was doubtless partly embarrassment. The lady in the case is at a disadvantage, for when a young man wishes to cut in he is supposed to ask the lady to refuse to be cut in on. Of course, your looking the other way didn't help, for he is quite within his rights to walk up, tap your partner who must release you. The fuss will wear away, but be as gracious as you can and admit that you were thoughtlessly impolite—it will be balm to his feelings and mend the difference the sooner. Pooch—what has dancing to do with your future existence? When you have married the nonstopper and settled down and time has brought you to a day 40 years hence, you will realize that the feet in the case do not matter as much as the steadfast qualities that you have attributed to the young man who has a grouch just at the moment. And your own feet may not be as eager—and your love for peace of mind and security may have been developed considerably as the 40 years have rolled along. Forget it, my dear, and patch it up. What do you want with a sheik when you are to marry a man? We are sending you the recipes, anyhow, for you will want them when this has straightened out. And the file will not suffer in the least for their presence whether you patch it up today or a month from today—and patch it you will.

It is rather difficult for us to plan the menus for these changing days. As we work them out it may be chill and when they appear it may be scorching. This is always true of the changing seasons of the year. Will you, then, reconstruct the menu as it may be necessary when the occasion of its use arises? If it is very warm, drop the soup by the wayside, and likewise the bread (which will require early morning preparation), may be changed to biscuit or muffins, or even plain bread from the corner store to lessen the labor if the day be a sultry one.

As it is readily seen, we have planned this menu for the use of the oven in the preparation of the main dishes of the meal. The

A Window That Is Different

HOUSE AND GARDEN
AS was his intention the architect has in the window shown above, obtained something of the charm and grace that characterizes much of the architecture in the Latin countries of Europe. This window was designed to carry out the spirit of a home patterned after the Italian and Spanish cottages which belong to the towns and villages bordering the Mediterranean. In construction it is the essence of simplicity. The apertures are made by two double arches, one on the outer face of the dwelling and one on the inner, with space between to allow a single glass panel to cover the opening, or, during fine weather, to slide down into concealment. The glass panel consists of one very large light so that whether the window be open or closed the effect is the same. One side of each arch springs from an interestingly turned pedestal, one lying on each face of the building. As in the double-hung window the glass panel is counter weighted so that the window may be opened or shut with ease.

Curtains of heavy hand-blocked linen draped in the manner shown are suggested to harmonize with the interior effect created by the window.
Frankly, this type of window is not to be recommended for use on houses situated in the northern sections of this country to be used the year around. A window such as this is obviously not as practical as either the double-hung or casement windows during inclement weather. However, for the Southern house or for the summer cottage in the North such a window will make a picturesque addition to its detail.

Grape Jelly (Mrs. Grum).
One pound of grapes, either green or ripe, that have been picked over and washed. Cook the fruit until done, without stirring, but keep the fruit pushed down in the juice until all is well cooked and mashed. Now take an earthen bowl and strain the grape juice through a sieve into it. To each measure of pound of juice add a measure of pound of granulated sugar while the juice is boiling. (The juice must be put back into a saucepan and brought to boiling.) It is very important that the juice be boiling when the sugar is added. Stir sugar and juice until sugar is dissolved and let the whole boil for a few moments. Turn into jelly glasses.

May I thank our readers for the many pleasant letters that have recently come to us inclosed with the contributions that flock in for the tea menu contest.

Wheat in Acid Soil Liable to Winter Kill

New Brunswick, N. J., Oct. 11 (By A. P.).—Experimentation at the State College of Agriculture indicates that wheat planted in acid soil is much more liable to "winter killing" than that planted in fields where lime has been used to neutralize the acid.

A. W. Blair, associate soil chemist, says that in the majority of cases 1,500 to 2,000 pounds of pulverized limestone per acre, or the equivalent in hydrated lime, will be sufficient for wheat. If clover or alfalfa is to be grown, heavier applications of lime may be required.

1. Well do we know that the slightly soiled gloves may spoil an otherwise perfect costume, and white gloves can, on the whole, be worn but once. Better than the slightly soiled kid variety that we hesitate to send frequently to the cleaners because of the expense involved to have a pair or two of nice looking fabric gloves for winter wear, and thus have always spotless hand covering. They are priced at $1.50.

2. As frivolous as the mop is practical are the little bridge favors that are decidedly a utility as well as a frivolity. Quaint little English houses, about as big as a minute, with a gable and flowers and bright colors and, in their interiors, a tapeline! There are equally quaint little ladies, too, dressed in colonial hoop skirts. These two, the houses and the little ladies, sell for 50 cents. There is another type favor, a little basket of fruit with a tapeline that is equally small but a bit more elaborate, that sells for 75 cents. Any of these trinkets may be used to advantage at an informal table of bridges when one wishes to offer a prize and yet to avoid expense or any suggestion of elaborateness.

3. It would seem that we discard gloves and still gloves, but so soon shall we have need of this utility that it can not but be of advantage to at least know where satisfactory ones of varying price and quality are to be found. This last discovery is along the line of well known and much used hand wear. White fabric gloves, well made and very serviceable, and as a part of their serviceableness they are of the quality that may be depended upon to wash beautifully. It is a well-known fact that even

SECOND LOVE

COPYRIGHT 1926 BY EUGENE WEALE

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.
John Parrish is the poor young husband of a rich young wife, Audrey. They have quarreled because he went to a girls' college without telling her. She invites Marie Allen, a young, dark, beautiful-to-her house. Marie believes that the new freedom among women means that women can do everything that men ever did, including their slandering. She tells Parrish so. Audrey believes Parrish will be shocked at her friend, but Parrish says he regards Marie as "a mighty interesting old lady." Audrey's father, Harry Morton, writes her from London, warning her that her new marital quarrel is due, and suggesting that she let her husband win sometimes.

Audrey dreams in her bed to meet Parrish that evening, and tells him not to be mean to her any more, and says she has been good to him by letting him manage her money. He tells her he has an engagement with Marie at his office that evening, that she wants him to be in London, and that she wants him to be in London.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.
(Characters and situations in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER III.

AUDREY drew back from Parrish and held him at arm's length.

"What on earth does Marie need a business adviser for?" she demanded.

"I don't know exactly," he confessed.

"She said it was something about her investments."

"Investments, fiddlesticks!" said his wife. "She hasn't any investments. She lives with her father and mother, and they give her a big fat allowance. That's all the investment she's got."

She considered for a time. "I'll bet she's got herself into some kind of a mess, and wants you to help her out. Well, all right. What time do you meet her?"

"In half an hour, now," he said. "I'll go down with you," she promised, and ran into the house.

Audrey kept her father's chauffeur for her own car, but her husband insisted on driving a disreputable old Dilliver. It had been his long before their marriage. For a brief time of trouble and debt it had passed out of his possession, but his first errand when once more in funds had been to rescue the car from the dealer who had it. This contrivance he now piloted to the front curb, and sat in it, waiting for his wife.

She made no comment when she saw it, but climbed in beside him.

"Aren't you afraid the hind wheels will fall off?" she inquired, as they rattled down Sixteenth street.

He laughed. "They're liable to at that," he said. "Had a fine offer for this car on a trade deal—twenty dollars. But I'm holding out for twenty-five."

"You'll never sell it at all," she told him. "You'll drive it until the wheels fall off."

"Maybe so," he agreed, master-

"Well, kind friends and neighbors," Marie said, "I must live the rest of my life on twelve hundred and upsteeen dollars and empty cents."

fully quelling an attempt of the steering wheel to jiggle.

Outside the downtown office where Parrish managed his wife's fortune, and the affairs of his father-in-law in the latter's absence, they saw Marie Allen's yellow roadster.

"She's here ahead of us," he said.

"But I had your dad's secretary wait to let her in."

They parked the little, rusty car behind the shining, gaudy long one, and entered the building. It was not yet dark, and the night elevator man stood in the doorway, enjoying a draught on his pipe.

"How do, Miss Morton," said the elevator man. "That is to say, Mrs. Parrish. Some folks waiting for you upstairs," he added, to Parrish.

Marie greeted them with bubbling enthusiasm at the outer entrance of Harry Morton's suite.

"You dear things!" she cried.

"How sweet of both of you to come," she kissed Audrey on the cheek. "Did you come along to guard him from me?"

Audrey laughed. "I'm not afraid. But I wanted to hear more of this nonsense about your investments. Why didn't you come over to the house?"

Marie led the way into Parrish's private room and seated herself in his chair.

"This was strictly business," she said, "and I didn't want to bother you at home about such things. But you can stay and listen, Audrey, dear."

"So sweet of you," said her friend.

Parrish settled himself in the stereographer's chair that stood beside his desk.

"What was it you wanted to ask me about?" he inquired.

Marie threw up her hands. "Isn't business terrible?" The way men do it, anyway. No preliminary chit-chat at all. Just hard, cold business. But we women'll fix that."

She dug into a handbag that she carried looped to her wrist, and extracted from it a gold and green stock certificate. She opened this, disclosing the seal at the bottom of the page, and handed it to Parrish.

"How much is that worth?" she asked.

He glanced at the certificate, and then turned to the wastebasket behind him. The office had not yet been cleaned, and the basket was full. After moment's search, he drew forth a crumpled evening newspaper, smoothed it, and turned to the market page. His eye, moved swiftly down a column of fine print.

"That share you have there," he said, "is worth exactly $1,220.50."

"Aren't you smart!" exclaimed Marie, in admiration. "How did you find out so quickly?"

"It's a good stock—all I had to do was to look up today's market," he explained.

He gave her back the certificate. She received it with a flourish.

"Well, kind friends and neighbors," she said, "take a good look at this. It's all I have in the world, besides my clothes and my roadster. I must live the rest of my life on $1,200 and upsteeen dollars and empty cents!"

"Why, dearie!" Audrey's tone was concerned. "What's wrong?"

Marie arose and poised before them, theatrically. "Behold the prodigal daughter! My daddy is up to date, too. He's turned me out of house and home!"

"What?" cried Parrish and Audrey together.

"He did," insisted Marie. "Just like cruel fathers used to turn out the boy who wouldn't enter the counting house. Kicked me out without a dime—except this, and it was mine anyway."

Audrey rose and took the other girl by the shoulder.

"Are you joking?" she asked, intently.

"Joking, hell!" said Miss Allen, profanely. "I say I got the grand bounce. And, Moses! What a panning! I tried to out-cuss him, but I couldn't. He's had more practice."

Audrey took her and pushed her back into Parrish's chair.

"Now tell us what happened," she commanded.

Parrish drew his chair nearer, his serious face alert, and his eyes glistening.

"It sounds like a bully row," he said. "Tell all about it."

The girl bit the corner of her handkerchief, in doubt. "I don't know just where to start," she said. "But, anyway, it's about feminism."

"About what?"

"Feminism—woman's rights. It's been going on a long time. Dad had an idea, I guess, that when I went to college I'd learn to spout Greek and make speeches in Hebrew. When he found out what I actually did learn, he was mad. Said it wasn't decent to talk about the things I talked about—claimed that only livery stable loafers said such things, and that even they didn't exist any more."

She lapsed into silence.

"Well?" said Audrey.

"Things got worse from then on," said Marie. "Dad never went to college. He doesn't understand."

"But goodness, child—I know lots of girls from college and they don't have a wild line of talk like yours," Audrey said. "Why didn't you tone down?"

"You don't understand, either," Marie shook her head. "I tried to explain that to dad. I told him that girls are just like boys now. It's the new feminism. There are nice boys in college who study and want to be great men. Then there are wild boys who go necking with a bottle on their hip. It's the same way with the girls. I didn't want to be a pale girl with spectacles. I wanted to be the other kind. I wanted to be free."

She laughed shortly. "I'm free now, all right." She looked at her stock certificate. "Grandpa gave me that or I'd be touching you for a loan right now."

Parrish shifted in his chair.

"You didn't finish your story," he suggested.

"No." Her voice was inquiring. "Well, it ended this way. I told him that men and women are coming into a lovely equality. There will be fuzzy old women around club rooms, needing a bath, just like the fuzzy old men you see in the front windows of clubs. There will be lady gamblers, and there are lady bootleggers right now. He asked me what I was driving at."

They waited for her to go on.

"I said I was just thinking out loud. I told him there would be rip-snorting old terriers of women, going out and winking at the pretty boys along the street, just as the old bucks do to the girls. Then he slapped me!"

Her eyes twinkled. "Do you know what I called him? Well, I won't tell you. But I kicked him in the shins."

She fastened her handbag with the stock certificate inside.

"And that's how I came to be here," she concluded, "asking financial advice."

She sat waiting for them to speak. Parrish and Audrey caught each other's glance, and looked back at the girl. Her face was composed, her brilliant color unaltered, her eyes and lips serene.

Parrish had been conscious of a muffled sound coming from the rear end of the suite.

"Oh, I forgot to say," Marie said brightly. "Dad followed me up here, and I have him locked in your back office. That's he, pounding on the doors."

Queen Mary Dances At Servants' Ball

London, Oct. 11 (By A. P.).—King George was a smiling spectator when Queen Mary took the floor at the annual "Gillies ball" and led off the opening reel with one of the higher officials of their Balmoral castle. The queen finished the dance but sat out most of the others—which did not include a modern dance and not even a little bit of jazz.

King George does not dance, but Princess Mary and the queen, ladies danced through most of the evening.

JUST FOLKS

—By EDGAR A. GUEST

WORRY.

Let others sing of perfect bliss. Sometimes I want to hurry; At times I'm glad I shoot to miss, I'm glad that I can worry; If everything went well with me, Intolerably bored I'd be.

I like the sunshine and the skies A field of perfect blue, But sunny weather I'd despise If rain I never knew. If always I had cash enough, I'd fairly hate the filthy stuff.

If perfect golf I always played The game would have no charm, If every debt of mine were paid I'd want a mortgage farm; I couldn't live a whole month through With not a single task to do.

So here's to worry and to care, Long may they stay with me; While I have burdens I must bear Some joy in life I'll see. Unbroken peace is not my quest, Only the dead have perfect rest.

WIVES OF TOMORROW

By FRANCES McDONALD

SO many girls come to this column with the question, "Can I bring him up to my standards?" and "Should his family be held against him?" The questions springing from the woman's instinct to protect and defend that which she loves are always worthy of the deepest consideration. Woman often can through love eradicate habits that are harmful, instill standards that are worthy, but when it comes to the young girl faced with the force of a man's family and ingrained differences in training, breeding and standards of living, then the fight is an uneven one, and the girl, however deep her love, usually loses. And so we present two very human documents that speak for themselves and speak volumes:

I have just finished reading your column. I would like to give a little advice to the girl in doubt about her lover's family. I married the same sort of man eight and a half years ago, very much to my sorrow. Every time I see them, which isn't very often because I can't bear them, I am so thoroughly disgusted with them I could scream. I never was wealthy, but my people were clean cut and did everything to please us, but his people are rude to every one, loud and coarse, and their manners are terrible—and their manner of speech worse!

I can see how you very wrong it is to marry beneath you and I certainly consider people like that beneath you.

I was plump and bright and very active before marriage, but you should see me now. I look ten years older than I am, having passed my thirtieth birthday, and weigh only 106 pounds.

I do hope this girl will do as you advised and break her engagement, because there will be no happiness there. If it weren't for my two children I would have done something very rash years ago, but I am not able physically to go to work and have no one to care for the children, whom I love dearly.

I trust this letter will help her to decide.

Have been very much interested in your column for a long time and never miss reading it, but this is the first time I have written you.

Thanking you, I am, respectfully, A WORRIED MOTHER.

Dear Miss McDonald: Kindly print this for the benefit of others. This is my first visit to your wonderful column and I hope my advice will help. I just want to say to every girl who is trying to make the best of an inferior man or to shut her eyes to the insurmountable barrier of class difference—STOP where you are!

My experience has been a bitter one. Three years ago I met a man, much older than myself, who seemed to be all a girl could want for a husband, except for certain faults. Shortly before we were married, he took me to see his family much against his will and I too was shocked and disgusted. He was very much ashamed of them and told me so. I felt sorry for him because he seemed so above them. Well, we were married quietly with only my mother present. The change that came over my husband didn't seem possible and I was stunned. He fell right into their ways and in every way seemed like a different man. If two people of marriageable age wish to unite themselves without any more ceremony than is required by church or state, and dash off romantically or creep out quietly to do this, I don't consider that it is necessary to broadcast the fact six months, or a year, or six years, afterward, in the good old traditional way. Unless the families, informed at once, think it worth while to make known their formal recognition of the match among a large circle of acquaintances, I should not bother to send out announcements. No, indeed. It does look silly in the end to notify your friends in solemn engraving that your child was married two years ago.

If your child happens to be away from you, and marries without waiting for your consent and you want the world to know at once that you would have consented if you'd been with her, and are quite ready to agree with her choice, then for you to send out the usual wedding announcement has some dignity. But suppose you suddenly were told by her that she had married several years ago, when she was at college and now wanted to join her young husband, where he was bridge-building in South America, or castle-building in Spain, or doing anything a young man might be doing in any country on the globe, you certainly would be a goose to begin worrying about announcements. Yet some mothers do, and I have an idea they are not a bit grateful when I beg them to content themselves with telling or writing the news only to those who are near and dear enough to be interested!

I've had letters also from young married couples who, now that they have had the fun of eloping, rather want the fuss of the old-fashioned wedding costume. I always advise them to write to particular friends and, if that is not enough, to send a notice to the papers of the town they were born in.

The custom of sending engraved announcements to people who, for solitary daily dozen at home, and its effects are almost at once apparent in the plant grace and swing of your bearing.

Tomorrow Viola Paris will give some advice on the proper carriage of the body, and how to teach it to children.

Rainy Day Attire

QUANTITY FAIR

REGARDLESS of the size of a man's wardrobe, it should include such items as will afford him proper protection from the rain. Many men think that any sort of an old suit or overcoat is suitable for the rain. When they are dressed in this manner their appearance is as grotesque as the man who is faultlessly groomed but who has made no provision for the rainy day. While it is very sensible and practical not to wear one's best clothes in rainy weather, the well-dressed man never wears such old clothes as will detract from his appearance. A happy medium should be struck and the suit worn on the rainy day should be one that will stand up under weather conditions. It should not be too light either in weight or in color. Every man should possess a raincoat of some sort. It may be either a waterproofed covert cloth or gabardine, or it may be of rubber. It should hang quite loosely from the shoulders and should be long enough to give ample protection to the trousers. A soft felt hat and an umbrella are other important items. In this connection, the umbrella, when carried and not actually in use, should be rolled and kept in its cover. On dark, rainy days, it is always well to wear a rather gay necktie and handkerchief, as these brighten up a man's turnout considerably.

EXERCISING FOR RESILIENCY.

A SLENDER figure and an unlined face go far in producing an effect of youthfulness, but this effect can be almost annihilated unless, in addition, one possesses the pliability of a reed. Unbending, unyielding, from shoulder to knee, with the most uncompromising of waistlines, march these women who may be young or old, but are never youthful. They are too stiff.

Here are some exercises that are practiced in the dancing studios of New York. These exercises are faithfully followed by hundreds of women who have no dreams of a stage career, but who merely wish to "limber up" and appear less like ramrods.

First comes the old familiar one of touching the fingers to the floor. You can do it, of course, but it is working at it rapidly and continuously that is one way of loosening up the waistline.

Another is the exercise in which both feet are planted on the floor, about ten inches apart. The hands are on the hips. Rotate the torso in as complete a circle as you can, first from left to right, then from right to left. Continue this until you are breathless, then rest awhile and try this one. Grasping some support with the left hand, swing the opposite leg forward and back like a pendulum, keeping the toe always pointed. Start slowly and gather momentum as you go. See if you can not swing the leg above the head in front and shoulder high in back. Do the same with the other leg, and you will find it snappy, exhilarating work.

For relaxing the upper part of the body, there is nothing on earth like a pair of Indian clubs. If you can beg or borrow a pair. Swing both arms in parallel circles before the body, ten times right and ten times left, then reverse. Then take one arm at a time and swing it in a wide circle ten times right and ten times left.

It is perfectly useless to take these exercises spasmodically. If you loathe the exercise, there are ways of sugar-coating the pill. A group of five or six girls and a phonograph can give the illusion of a regular gymnasium class. Or, if there is a dancing studio in your town, you could not do better than to join it and practice its technique. It is ten times as much fun as the

RUNAWAY MATCH.

QUITE often I am confronted with this inquiry. Some times the parents of a runaway couple, some times the runaway couple themselves, want to know how to make an unconventional wedding appear to have been as humdrum as possible. Usually, I don't see why they care. If two people of marriageable age wish to unite themselves without any more ceremony than is required by church or state, and dash off romantically or creep out quietly to do this, I don't consider that it is necessary to broadcast the fact six months, or a year, or six years, afterward, in the good old traditional way. from loss of charm under trying hygienic conditions secure this way. True protection—discards like tissue

SCORES of women's disorders are largely traced today to old-time "sanitary pads," insecure and unsanitary.

Eight in 10 better-class women today employ "KOTEX."

Wear lightest gowns and frocks without a second thought, any day, anywhere.

Discards as easily as a piece of tissue. No laundry. Five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads!

Deodorizes. Ends ALL fear of offending.

You get it at any drug or department store simply by saying, "KOTEX." No embarrassment.

In fairness to yourself, try this new way. Costs only a few cents. Twelve in a package.

It's Not the Type It's the Neckwear

—that's Mitzi's fashionable conclusion, as to why she finds all these varied NECKWEAR FASHIONS so extremely becoming. So one has but to choose—in our Neckwear Section—there are all of these and more for one's selection:

The Boyish Collar, on a smart crepe de chine vestee is just right for the jersey sports frock; white, yellow, tan or blue—$3 set.

The lovely Jabot, is always a fashionable addition to any frock—of white crepe with a border of colored dots, it is especially lovely—$2.50.

The feminine Bertha Collar, is having a vogue just now—and these of sheer crepe come in flesh, tan, white, or black and white combined—$3 to $7.50.

The Little Tailored Collar, finds a way to be smartly worn, on the high-neck winter frock—such collars of crepe de chine, are $1.

MODISH MITZI

Smartness Is Reason Enough

"Of course you can wear it, Mitzi, it's just your type," remarks the young woman behind Mitzi. It's one of the boyish collars she is referring to. They are being used now as vestees for jersey and wool crepe dresses especially.

Smartness Is Reason Enough

When Mitzi appeared in a dress with a jabot collar, the same friend prattled on about its becomingness. "You see how well it suits you, Mitzi. It's so dignified and, well—exactly your type, you know." By the way don't fail to remark the dolman sleeves on this frock.

"You know, Mitzi, after all you are the feminine type and bertha collars absolutely belong to you." No one will deny that this double tiered bertha collar is very becoming to our heroine, as it is to thousands of other women just now.

Smartness Is Reason Enough

The young lady having changed her mind about Mitzi's type three times is about to offer the suggestion that she is the smart ultra fashionable type which is why this narrow pointed collar is so becoming. Mitzi knows that type hasn't much to do with these days, these are all very smart and that's why they are good looking. No other reason necessary.

ANNIVERSARY TRIBUTE PAID TO COUNT PULASKI

Price Lauds Polish Patriot
Who Aided Americans in Fight for Freedom.

DISTRICT SONS ATTEND

Invoking the memory of Haitians who fought side by side with Count Casimir Pulaski for American freedom, Mr. Hannibal Price, Minister from Haiti, yesterday delivered a eulogy at the base of the statue of the Polish hero, at Thirteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue. The ceremony was held under the auspices of the Sons of the Revolution in the District of Columbia, on the occasion of the one hundred and forty-seventh anniversary of Count Pulaski's death.

Mr. Price spoke feelingly of the Haitian volunteers, who, serving under the Polish nobleman, "like Count Pulaski, fell on the field of honor in order to allow the descendants of those they were helping to live freely." He bestowed a trinity of praise upon these "pioneers of American independence—the French ally under whose flag they were serving—and their gallant leader, Count Pulaski."

The minister was assisted by Maj. Gen. Eli K. Cole, commander of the marine base at Quantico; Maj. Gen. Ledeune, commander of the marine corps; M. Jan Ciechanowski, Minister from Poland; and Maj. Georges Thenault, assistant military attaché of the French embassy. Chaplain E. E. Niven, of the United States navy, opened the exercises with an invocation, following which the national anthems of Haiti, Poland, France and America. The committee from the Sons of the Revolution in charge of the ceremony was as follows: Brig. Gen. George Richards, U. S. M. C., chairman; Brig. Gen. Charles L. McCawley and Dion Williams, Colonels; Harry R. Lay and George C. Thorpe, Lieutenants; Charles R. Sanderson and Charles T. Westcott, Majors; Julian C. Smith and Lieut. William C. Hall, U. S. M. C.

A wreath was placed at the base of the statue by Mr. Price. It was recalled that Count Pulaski, Polish nobleman, soldier and patriot, met his death October 9, 1779, when the colonial forces under Count d'Estaing stormed Savannah. Mortally wounded, he was taken aboard the American brig Wasp and died as that vessel was leaving the Savannah river.

An invitation was tendered members of the Washington association by the Baltimore guests to attend the semiannual ladies' night meeting of the Baltimore association on November 18.

CHANGES IN HIGHWAY LINES CONSIDERED

Width of 120 Feet for Piney Branch Road Urged Before Commissioners.

Five more changes in the highway plan, part of an extensive program to alter the plan from rectangular regularity and preserve topographical contour, were considered yesterday by the District commissioners at a public hearing.

The only difference of opinion came in the case of Piney Branch road, between Cedar and Butternut streets, which is now 33 feet wide. The original proposal was to widen it to 120 feet. The coordinating committee of the National Capital park and planning commission reduced this to 90 feet. W. W. Warwick, of the personnel classification board, and other citizens appeared to favor the original plan for a width of 120 feet.

Other changes considered boulevarding of Madison street, connecting Forts Slocum and Stevens; re-routing Tilden street slightly to preserve old trees, eliminating Randolph street and rearranging others in the area bounded by Sixteenth and Randolph streets and Blagden and Rock Creek Park roads and rearranging streets in the area between St. Elizabeth's hospital, Blue Plains and Giesboro road. No decisions were announced.

$5,000 Damage Suit Lost.

William F. Decatur, a carpenter, who sued the Charles H. Tompkins Co. for $5,000 damages for alleged injuries, lost his case yesterday when Justice Siddons in circuit court directed a verdict in favor of the company.

Decatur alleged that he was injured in the erection of a building at Fourth and T streets northwest on December 20, 1923.

"THEY KNEW WHAT THEY WANTED" IS WELL ACTED

President Players Appear in Flawless Production of Pulitzer Prize Play.

PERFORMANCE PERFECT

"Once may be an accident but twice is a habit," goes the saying and the President Players must now plead guilty to habitual excellence, for on top of a flawless production of "What Price Glory," they added last night an equally brilliant offering of Sidney Howard's Pulitzer prize play, "They Knew What They Wanted."

There are discriminating theatergoers who entertain a prejudice—against stock productions, but none so great as to permit the opportunity to pass of seeing as satisfying a presentation of the Howard opus as the original company gave. If this is to be continued those who control the booking destinies of the city's "big league" theaters may do their worst and Washington will still enjoy a successful season.

As the three acts were unfolded last night in smooth and errorless style the suspicion grew that the trio of principal players could not possibly have developed the depth and color of their parts in one week's stock preparation, but surely must have acted the roles in some previous sustained production. There was no basis for this suspicion, so assurance was given, as to Miss Leona Powers and Frank Charlton, but this reviewer at least will never be convinced that Walter Gilbert's Tony, the role originally played by Richard Bennett, had not at least understudied that actor in the part. From makeup to accent the illusion of Bennett's performance was perfect.

In three less competent hands it is horrible to contemplate what might have been made of the play, for the story of the near tragedy growing out of the old Italian vine grower's desire for a bride and what befell from the wedding is far from actorproof. There have been those who have caviled at the Pulitzer award to the play, in view of the condition of the donor that it must tend to advance public morals as well as literature. Baseless as such criticism is in the play's inherent tone, it must be confessed that the reaction of last night's audience to several situations and lines gave understanding to some of the attacks which have been made on the award.

Anne Nichols' New Play Built on Comedy Lines

"Howdy King," in Premiere at Poli's, Brings Back Three Washington Favorites of the Stage.

Anne Nichols offers "Howdy King," a romantic comedy, by Mark Swan, directed by Clifford Brooke.

THE CAST:
Ortega.....Alfred Kappeler
Prince.....Byron Beasley
Baron Felipe La Varr.....Ted Gibson
Johnny North.....Lorna Elliott
Marta Bond.....Lorna Elliott
Jefferson Bond.....Louis Proffitt
Harry O'Neil.....Frank Otto
Duke D'Alvar.....G. Davidson Clark
Conness Isabella.....Jeanette Lane
Baroness Carlotta Varion.....Leneta Lane

When Mark Swan took his trusty pen in hand and dashed off the play that had its premiere last night at Poli's he must have visioned Hollywood and the movies. Certainly, this is the kind of stuff that goes better on screen than stage. There is scarcely a character in all the land big enough to hold it, running, as it does, beyond the stage—and time limits, too.

In the newspapers last year was a story to the effect that a Wyoming ranchman had inherited a dukedom in one of the European countries. With such a theme as this, the author of the new play takes as his leading character an Arizona cowboy and enthrone him in the kingdom of El Dorado—somewhere in the old country.

Here, then, is the clash of democracy against aristocracy, the conflict of ideas from the medieval world with notions of young America—and all the opportunity extant for wise cracks, the wailing of Old Glory, and forced patriotism; not to mention certain humor that it flows easily, would assuredly compensate for labor lost in just such a stage production. Unfortunately, the new play does not come off as its author and sponsors planned. It falls flat.

Like the Graylock novels, those melodramatic tales of George Barr McCutcheon that were in vogue a decade or so ago—"Howdy King" is charged and supercharged with plot and counterplot, with revolution, bombast, and fireworks, with love interest, and all that go to make a glorious nightmare. It has, too, the homely language of rural America balanced against the diplomatic distaste of princely court, and state trappings enough to make a background for the screen's most pretentious offering. Yet, all to little avail.

Clifford Brooke, whose work is familiar to Washington fans, has done his utmost in the way of direction and stagecraft. Minor Watson in the role of the king, carries the burden as well as might any man; but, instead of triumph, there is disaster.

This, of course, is only the first night, and the first week. The play might be rewritten, and should; for at present it is in no state to be publicly displayed. It needs a lot of overhauling, rewriting, bolstering up here, there, and all along the line. When this is done mayhap Miss Anne Nichols, who gave to the world "Abbie's Irish Rose," will have another feather in her cap; but not now. Alas, not now!

It may be that Clifford Brooke will set the king's crown on straight, a consummation devoutly to be wished; but he certainly has work ahead of him. There is as much to be taken out of the play as will have to be put in, for, as it stands, action is cluttered with too much diverting interest and stark naked with too little habiliments usually labeled comedy, save those trifles that usually come from clumsiness.

When his cowboy sets out for his new kingdom, deserting the ranch in Arizona, he takes with him a prize-fighter pal he picks up in Mexico. This fellow, played by Frank Otto, is the handy man, who eventually helps the king overthrow the revolutionists in El Dorado and set up a republic—like that of your old Uncle Sammy, back home. In the final act is enough shooting and gun play to satisfy the most rabid blood-and-thunder fan.

There is preaching too in the play, the doctrine that a government like this is infinitely better than something run by a king, or a dictator—also that we of America are a much better breed than bootlicking brothers and sisters overseas, the tribe that kow-tows to royalty. So it is here suggested that the title "Howdy King," would be much better supplanted by Eddie Guest's one line caption over his verses in the newspapers, "Just Folks."

Leneta Lane, lovely and regal and at home in royal surroundings, has a heavy vamping part in the play; one of the reasons why those who witnessed the opening performance wish the new venture well.

RETRIAL OF DAUGHERTY CASE MAY NEED AUTHORIZATION

not let matters go along undisturbed, is the natural inquiry here. The trial just concluded, however, impels that some consideration be given to the other horn of the dilemma. In other words, would perhaps be more profitable in the long run to put Buckner in second gear for a time until a survey is made of the probable road ahead.

The question of time and money expended on the case are secondary if the ends of justice call for these sacrifices. But if it appears that the government has made its maximum showing under circumstances which lawyers say never be duplicated in another court of justice and obtained the worst of it with a jury, is there any assurance that Buckner can ever expect to go as far in a new trial as he did in the first case? The jury was never ready to give even a majority vote to Buckner's charges, as it is reported the line-up was six to six.

Buckner, it is pointed out, and all the power of the government behind him, he had $8 witnesses, he had all the advantage of having his prospective victim placed in "the poisoned atmosphere" that has saturated the country from coast to coast since the hounding of Daugherty some years ago became a popular pastime. In addition, he had a judge who ruled in his favor on virtually every point and whose decision on some points and his advice to the juryman amazed legal authorities here.

Got Best of Breaks.
The consensus here yesterday was that even if the jury had convicted Daugherty, no higher court would have let the verdict stand. The juryman were told that the government did not even need to prove that Daugherty ever knew about the Merton case. They were told they could guess as to Jess Smith's relationship. When Van Orst, one of the jurors, said he could only change his opinion through duress the judge said he must be humble, though it was added that he should stand by his opinion unless he conscientiously changed his mind.

Under these circumstances Buckner got about ninety-nine and nine-tenths the best of the breaks so far as the judge's rulings were concerned, according to the consensus. If the case were tried again and the judge should take it away from the jury and direct a verdict of acquittal before Buckner got started, or if the favorable circumstances from Buckner's standpoint were lacking, the ultimate outcome might admittedly make matters worse for the administration.

Besides, there is a fear here of a reaction in Daugherty's favor if the government appears to be persecuting him. To throw him to the wolves has been politically expedient, it is admitted, but it is conceded that the government can not afford to prosecute any citizen unless it is convinced that it has sufficient evidence. And there are more than a few here, including officials of the Department of Justice, who have never believed that Buckner had the evidence he claimed to have.

Officials' Views Confict.

In this connection the conflicting views between the Department of Justice officials over the value of Buckner's anti-Daugherty crusade were in evidence when Buckner came to Washington to consult prior to the first trial. He stressed the various points of his case, dwelt on the intricate problems of law involved and claimed to have the kind of a bullet-proof case which would satisfy the law and convince any jury. He was listened to respectfully and in silence. Attorney General Sargent gave him a free hand, as did Donovan. Anyway, as the saying goes, they were not going to dispute anything and let Buckner "put the bucks to them."

But it is said that Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Assistant Attorney General, did not follow the policy of silence indulged in by the men officials about her. She heard Buckner's case in full, studied it and thought over it. Then she gave Mr. Sargent and others her opinion of it. That was that Buckner had gathered together a mass of insinuations and suspicions and material that did not constitute sufficient evidence upon which to proceed in any court of law against the most lowly or the most exalted citizen.

No person, no matter how humble or defenseless, could be legally convicted on that evidence, she declared. And she stressed the fact that in proceeding against a former cabinet officer and a man who had been Attorney General of the United States, the government was proceeding with a legally untenable case under circumstances where the eyes of the world would be focused on the trial.

Mrs. Willebrandt's protest was of no avail, but last night she appeared in the role of the one official who seemingly understood the law and the value of evidence better than had been surmised.

Dye Decision Cited.

Coincidentally with Buckner's failure to win his case against Daugherty came news yesterday that A. Mitchell Palmer, Attorney General in the Wilson administration, had been vindicated by the action of the Supreme Court of the United States in approving the sale of the German dye patents. In this case, there has been a popular outcry raised against Palmer's action. The Supreme Court's decision is viewed therefore, as another proof that the political atmosphere or the desire to muckrake has not yet penetrated through the windows of the nation's highest tribunal.

Simultaneous, also, with the news of the Daugherty trial's end, came the statement yesterday from Senator Borah that he proposes to begin his investigation of the affairs of the alien property custodian's office soon and that he probably would ask Harry M. Daugherty and Thomas W. Miller to be the first witnesses.

Thus Daugherty's case may expect to be grilled by the senatorial Department of Justice while waiting for the United States Department of Justice to get its bearings for a second edition of the Merton case. The Borah committee, however, has no funds for its hearings and it is not yet clear how this difficulty will be met.

DAUGHERTY RETRIAL REMAINS A QUESTION

most sensational witnesses at the trial. He was called by the government to tell how his brother had burned bank records which the government contended would have comprised an important link in its chain of evidence.

Daugherty's counsel, in summation, asserted that the records were burned to keep political foes from discovering facts concerning the Harding campaign fund which Harry Daugherty had raised. Buckner replied in his summation by asking how such information would be in the hands of the government in the Harding campaign was in 1919 and 1920.

Neither defendant took the stand. The American Metal Co., Ltd., "has at no time been directly or indirectly concerned" in the Daugherty-Miller trial," C. M. Loeb, president of the company, asserted tonight.

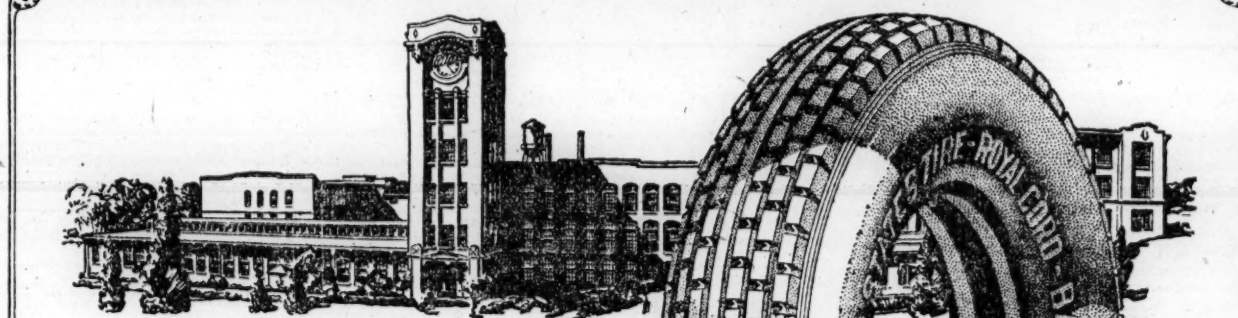

In a signed statement, Mr. Loeb explained that the charges against the erstwhile government officials did not involve assets of the American Metal Co., but the proceeds from shares in the company which were sold by the alien property custodian at public auction in 1919. These proceeds, and not the shares of the metal company, were later transferred to foreign claimants, Mr. Loeb stated.

UNITED STATES TIRES ARE GOOD TIRES

Winnsboro Mills, Winnsboro, S. C.

These cotton mills, controlled by the United States Rubber Company, specialize in cord for United States Tires.

Answering some Questions about the Cord in United States Tires

Q—How important is cord in a tire?

A—Cord provides the strength for the tire. It is the framework and the reinforcement which gives to the tire its form and structure. Rubber saturates, insulates and webs the cords together and supplies the tire with its wear resisting surface.

Q—Who makes the cord for United States Tires?

A—The superior cord used in United States Tires is made in the Winnsboro Mills at Winnsboro, South Carolina. These mills are controlled by the United States Rubber Company and have been, since 1917.

Q—Why does the United States Rubber Company consider it advantageous to operate its own cord mills?

A—This is in keeping with the Company's policy of ensuring absolute uniformity and high quality in all the materials which go into its tires. For the same reason, the Company grows its own rubber on its great plantations in the Far East.

Q—Then, this cord from the Winnsboro Mills is uniform and of high quality?

A—Yes. These one-product mills use machinery especially adapted to making cord for United States Tires. The operators are specialists in their work and the entire energy of the mills is devoted to making the best tire cord that can be made.

Q—How is the quality of the cord assured?

A—Tests are made at each step in manufacture at the mills. Further tests are made of each carload received at the tire factories. A third series of control tests are made periodically at the Central Textile Development Department, the Company's technical organization specializing in the development of cotton goods for the United States Rubber Company.

FOREIGN BONDS DISPLAY
MOST BUYING SUPPORT

Prices in General Drift Off Irregularly—New Chilean Issue Awarded.

FEW RAILS ARE STRONG

New York, Oct. 11 (By A. P.).

Bond prices drifted irregularly lower in today's colorless trading. Firm money rates, the continued unsettledness of the stock market and the approach of a holiday were blamed for the curtailment of activity and the absence of buying support.

Only in the foreign list was there any semblance of purchasing power and this lacked the vigor which characterized last week's operations. Italian obligations were steadied by the rally in that country's exchange to the high point of the year and French rails and municipals were firm in the face of dwindling demand for the government's issues.

The most important development of the day was the announcement that a $42,000,000 bond issue for the Republic of Chile out of an authorized $85,000,000 loan had been awarded to a New York banking syndicate headed by Haligart & Co., and Kiesel, Kinnicut & Co., who sold a $30,000,000 Argentinean issue last spring. The bonds will be offered simultaneously in this country and in the European markets later in the week. Outstanding Chilean bonds were firm today.

Although the market generally was narrow, declines of 3 points or more took place in Brooklyn Union Gas 5 1/2's, Granby Mining 7's and Norfolk & Western convertible 6's, American Beet Sugar 6's, Wickwar Spencer Steel 7's and Pressed Steel Car 5's also were heavy.

Movements in the railroad group were mixed, with the general tendency toward lower levels. Rock Island 4's of 1925 and Duluth South Shore 5's moved counter to the trend.

WALL STREET GOSSIP

Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation, subsidiary of Bethlehem Steel, will expand its ship building plant in Maryland at a cost of about $2,000,000, including new structures and machinery installations. Property adjoining the plant has been acquired for the purpose.

Under its employees' subscription plan for ownership of common stock, the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. has increased the price from $125 to $130 a share as of November 1.

Indian Refining Co. has completed the sale of its pipe line subsidiary, the Indian Pipe Line Corporation, to the Illinois Pipe Line Co. The line has been supplying the Indian refinery with about 25 per cent of its crude requirements. Deliveries to the Lawrenceville plant will continue under the terms of the sale.

American Ship & Commerce Corporation reports net loss of $1,283,309 for the first half of 1926, including subsidiaries, against net loss of $416,865 in the same period of 1925.

Proportioned to the number of firms in business, R. G. Dun & Co.'s insolvency index this week is still below the average for the first week of October, a ratio of 86.1, whereas it was 82.9 for September. For the first week of October a year ago it was 88.7 while for the month of September, 1925, the index was 86.2.

Pig iron sales in the New York market last week showed marked improvement, between 15,000 and 18,000 tons, against 12,000 to 14,000 the week before. Pending business also is expanding.

Freight traffic on Canadian railroads was heavier in the week ended October 2 than the week before, 77,249 carloads, against 75,937 and 74,782 the corresponding week last year.

Samuel Vulcanin, president of Baldwin Locomotive Works, said today that dividends would be earned this year on both preferred and common stocks. Current operations of 45 per cent of capacity would be continued well into the first quarter of 1927, and new business in sight was encouraging. A reserve has been set up out of surplus to assure regular dividend on preferred and common in order to add stability to the company's shares from the investors' point of view, he asserted, and if not needed next year would be carried over to subsequent years.

A reduction of 1 cent a gallon for gasoline will be put into effect tomorrow by Atlantic Refining Co. The new tank wagon price will be 19 cents.

GEORGE SISLER DEPOSED AS MANAGER OF BROWNS

Wills-Sharkey To Battle Tonight

Giant Negro Returns to Ring After Year of Idleness.

Opponent Is Defensive Boxer; Outpointed Other Heavies.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (By A. P.). Harry Wills, whose gloved fists rapped in vain in the heavyweight title door during the seven-year reign of Jack Dempsey, fares forth on the challenging trail once more tomorrow night.

The big negro faces the young and confident Jack Sharkey, of Boston, in a 15-round contest at Ebbits field.

Now 36 years old, the husky stevedore has not been in the ring for almost a year. His last match, in October, 1925, resulted in a technical one-round knockout of Floyd Johnson, of Des Moines. Five months prior to the bout he knocked out Charley Weiner, of Newark, at the Polo Grounds.

Since then Wills has centered his efforts upon gaining his long-desired fling at the championship. Encouraged in his drive by the New York State athletic commission, which ranked him as leading challenger, Wills frequently appeared at the threshold, only to be turned aside each time.

SHARKEY, a boxer of the defensive type, has come to the front rapidly in the last year, winning decisions over Eddie Huffman, of California; George Godfrey, of California; Jim Maloney, of Boston, and King Solomon, of Panama.

The Boston heavyweight will have youth in his favor, but in other respects, Wills will have the edge, with weight, height and reach in his favor.

The supporting card includes the following: George Courtney, Oklahoma middleweight, and Jimmy Darrah, California, ten rounds; Jack Townsend, Boston heavyweight, and Jake Warren, Chicago, six rounds; Black Bill, Cuban flyweight, and Happy Atherton, Indianapolis, six rounds.

No Marriage for Gene, But Maybe the Stage

New York, Oct. 11 (By A. P.). Gene Tunney today denied that he is engaged to be married. The heavyweight champion pugilist, told that he was reported engaged, declared:

"I don't even know a girl I could take to a theater, much less one I could marry."

The new title-holder is considering several theatrical contracts and will probably go on a tour soon, but he has no plans for a honeymoon.

Ruth Will Ask $150,000 For Contract Next Season

Babe to Demand Portion of His Value to "Gate"—Yanks Will Offer $75,000 and One-Year Term, Is Report.

SPECIAL TO THE WASHINGTON POST.
NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—George Herman (Babe) Ruth, who broke a string of world series records by hitting four homers against St. Louis pitching—three in one game—announced today before he set forth on a brief barnstorming tour, that he proposed to ask for $150,000 a year in his new contract.

The home run slugger's last contract went the way of all legal paper when the late season ended. It had covered a three-year period, during which time the greatest gate attraction baseball has ever known, received $52,000 yearly, plus bonuses, from his employer, Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees.

THE Babe conceded that his new demands would not be considered modest, but he explained he would be represented by an agent in the negotiations with President Ruppert and Ed Barrow, the hard-boiled secretary of the New York American league club, and he indicated his expectation that the club management would come close to meeting his demands.

Babe reasons that in the course of the season the American league games in which he participates draw some $750,000 more than they would if he was not on exhibition. And he wants a share of that sum which he thinks he brings in at the gate.

He pointed out today that he is getting as much as $3,000 a game for some of the dates on his barnstorming tour, the top figure being guaranteed by Montreal, a Class AA city, under a contract which gives him an optional percentage arrangement which he expects to accept and to bring him close to $4,000.

Col. Ruppert today refused to discuss the Babe's demands for his next contract. He was inclined to doubt the $150,000 figure represented what the Babe would expect for his next season's work.

"ONE thing is certain," said the club owner. "Ruth will not be given a long-term contract. He will be signed for only one year, under my plan to date, and his contract form, offering him what we consider he will be worth to us, will be sent out with those of all the other players of our club."

"As for his mention of $150,000; well, you can't blame him for trying."

From a source close to the Yankee management it was learned the figure which the club is to set forth in tendering the Bambino his new contract will be in the neighborhood of $75,000.

St. Louis' Celebration Takes Death Toll of 2

St. Louis, Oct. 11 (By A. P.). The toll of deaths from St. Louis' riotous celebration Sunday afternoon and last night of the Cardinals' world's series victory was increased today to two when Emil Lueck, 15, died from a fractured skull.

The youth was struck by an automobile while throwing paper streamers over telephone wires in the street. The first victim was William Troll, Jr., 17, who was killed when he was knocked to the street from the running board of an automobile.

A police check tonight revealed that 30 persons were injured, seven of them seriously, during the celebration.

2 G.W. GUARDS FRACTURE NOSES

Capt. Hottel, Athey Injured in Bucknell Encounter.

GEORGE WASHINGTON university gridmen came out of the Bucknell clash with two broken noses and a few minor injuries, but generally the squad is in fine physical condition and is resuming practice this week for the contest here Saturday with Blue Ridge college, of New Windsor, Md.

Athey and Hottel, guards, were the recipients of the smashed noses. However, they will be seen in action against Blue Ridge. Coleman, halfback, aggravated a shoulder injury, but he, too, will be ready to take the field Saturday.

Although his team met a 13-to-0 defeat at the hands of Bucknell, Coach Crum was more than satisfied with the fighting spirit they displayed.

"IN my three years at George Washington I've never seen a better fighting team than that which went up against Bucknell Saturday."

Cum said today, adding, "The boys were outwitted, but they were not outgained in any sense. This eleven shows more real fight than any other I've seen."

Scrimmage will be held with American university tomorrow on the Monument grounds. The team from Massachusetts avenue is expected to spring a surprise. Coach Springston, of American, is a former football captain at George Washington.

A week from Saturday George Washington will meet William and Mary at Williamsburg, Va., and on October 30 will play Penn State at State College, Pa.

G. U. Team Hit 40,000 Greet Cardinals in Ball Park

Back Ailment Likely to Keep Thompson Out of Game.

Duplin, Sophomore, Is Substitute Likely to Get Berth.

By JACK ESPRY.
THE George Washington University eleven may have to meet West Virginia, its strongest opponent to date this season, without the services of Jerry Thompson, the shifty-running speed king of the Blue and Gray backfield. The possible loss of Thompson became apparent yesterday when he was unable to take the field for practice.

Thompson is troubled with a peculiar ailment in his back. He was relieved in the Washington College game last Saturday after complaining of shortness of breath. He could not run the ball in his usual style, although this probably escaped the attention of the spectators.

An X-ray examination of Thompson's back was taken yesterday, but did not lead to a diagnosis of the trouble, for no bones were found disturbed nor was there any swelling. It is believed that the muscles have been strained and that the only cure is rest, which may require his absence from action all of this week and possibly longer.

WHILE it is not certain that Thompson will have to be counted out of the West Virginia clash, there is extreme doubt that he will play, and the Georgetown coaches are going about the business of preparing their charges for the Mountaineers with grim faces.

They looked about the Hilltop gridiron yesterday for a capable substitute for Thompson's position at left halfback. Practically all of the reserve backs came under their scrutiny, but none bore promise of entirely filling the injured star's shoes.

Head Coach Little expressed great satisfaction over the work of Ralph Duplin, young sophomore halfback, in last week's game. This youngster proved himself a diamond in the rough with an exhibition of fancy ball-toting that was somewhat reminiscent of Jack Hager, last year's outstanding halfback.

Duplin will receive much consideration for the vacant berth if Thompson can not play Saturday.

SCOOTS have brought the Hilltoppers plenty of information from West Virginia, resulting from the last two games in which the Mountaineers have performed, and it is Coach Little's intention that his men shall be well acquainted with the visitors' style when they come to grips at American League park.

West Virginia is reported to employ the shift, with the tackles lining up behind the line of scrimmage and then hopping forward just before the ball is snapped from center. The Hilltop scrubbs did not gain much ground with this play yesterday.

Peck-Judge-Sisler Deal Is Reported and Denied
The removal of George Sisler as manager of the Browns yesterday has again generated reports that the Washington and St. Louis clubs are involved in a deal which would send Roger Peckinpaugh and Joe Judge to St. Louis in return for the Browns' first baseman. These reports were current in New York baseball circles last night.

Such a trade, doubtless, would mean that Peckinpaugh would take over the management of the Browns.

President Clark C. Griffith, of the Washington club, last night denied, as usual, that such a deal was in the making, and added that he had given the matter no thought, had received no proposition from the St. Louis club, and had made no offer. He admitted, however, that he was in the market for any trade that would strengthen his team.

Haines Made to Wait While Home Folks Fix Reception
Dayton, Ohio, Oct. 11 (By A. P.). Wearing the Cardinal robes of victory, Jesse Haines, pitcher, hero of the world champion St. Louis Nationals, arrived here today on his way to his home in Phillipsburg, Ohio.

But he can't go home until morning. He was met at Union station by a small delegation which informed him the gates of his hometown were barred against him until tomorrow.

Phillipsburg is going to do the thing up right and tomorrow morning Haines will make a triumphant entry into Phillipsburg. Jesse, already enthroned as the king of Phillipsburg, will be given the keys to the city, and there will be speech making and rejoicing.

St. Paul, Neb., to Receive "Alexander the Greater"
St. Paul, Neb., Oct. 11 (By A. P.). This town of 1,800 persons is preparing for a home town invasion, not by "Alexander the Great" but by "Alexander the Greater" who yesterday pitched the Cardinals to the world's baseball championship. Today the name of Grover Cleveland Alexander was all that was necessary to start conversation whether in the depot, lunchrooms, barber shops or in county court. In the interim of the continual buzz of praise of St. Paul's idol, who left here as a telephone lineman many years ago to try his luck in the major leagues, citizens made plans for the home-coming of Alexander. He is expected home next Monday.

REMOVED AS ST. LOUIS PILOT

GEORGE SISLER, playing manager of the St. Louis Americans, was relieved of his post by President Phil Ball yesterday as a result of the disappointing showing of the club.

Curves Throttled Yanks, McGraw Says of Series

Cards' Hurlers Quickly Resort to Slow Ball and Change of Pace—Calls Pennock Real Artist.

By JOHN J. MCGRAW.
Manager New York Giants.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—In reviewing the world series the one impression that remains with me after having watched the games day after day, is that the American league this year must have been surprised with fast-ball pitching. That may account for the terrific hitting by several clubs early in the season. In a way it explains the apparent ease with which the Yanks hit the Brooklyn pitchers in their long spring series.

At that time of the year the pitchers had not yet acquired their curve balls and other finer deliveries like the slow ball. It was quite apparent that from the start of the series with the Cardinals that the heavy hitters of the Yanks thrived on fast-ball pitching. This was particularly true of men like Ruth, Gehrig, Meusel and Lazzeri. The Cardinal pitchers were quick to discover this, and when the more experienced pitchers began mixing them up, as we say, they were stopped.

Younger pitchers like Flint Rhem, Reinhardt and Herman Bell thought they could get a fast ball by the Yanks, and met with disaster. Even the veteran Shawkey and Hoyt tried to ram their fast ball past Cardinal batters and were beaten.

IT is very difficult to convince a young pitcher, particularly one that has just one win to his credit, that he is not a big league batter. He has to learn from experience. I remember very well when I had Hoyt on my club as a kid pitcher that he was getting hit hard in a spring practice game.

"One of the first things for you to learn," I told him, "is that you can't breeze a fast ball past big league hitters like you do in the minors. You've got to mix them up and also work the corners."

The boy was so proud of his speed, though, that he found it difficult to believe this. To this day he feels that way at times. In Sunday's deciding game, for example, he got two strikes on several batters and then laid a fast one right over the middle. They promptly socked it. It was on a chance like that that Tommy Thevenow made the hit that really won the game.

Bob Shawkey also used a great number of fast balls, but as he went along he got more crafty about it. No pitcher could beat either the Yanks or the Cardinals by the constant use of speed. In this series the Cardinal pitchers were quicker to sense the danger.

Herb Pennock pitched two of the prettiest ball games that I ever saw. I regard him as one of the very few great artists of the game today. But he could not do it all. His work should stand out as a feature of the series. It would stand out even more prominently but for the Cardinals having won the championship and taken most of the limelight.

HOYT won a game, but in doing so he constantly put himself on the defensive and then had to exert himself mentally and physically to get out of the holes that he dug for himself. His was just a fairly well pitched game.

I don't think there can be any question that the better club won this series. Baseball figures as a rule do not lie. The scoring was very accurate and at times severe. All the hits that show in the record were well earned.

To me the pitching of Alexander was the outstanding feature of the series. The most uninformed fan could not miss that. It was the most remarkable exhibition of craft and skill that I ever have seen. We have had other great pitchers to stand out in the big series, but none of them were 39 years old.

He must certainly rank with all the great masters. It was not so much Alex's strength but his knowledge of batters, born of long experience. If he did not know a batter—had never seen him before—

President Ball Relieves Star Of Post

Poor Showing of Club Responsible for Change.

Five Applicants Seek Berth; Killefer Not Considered.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 11 (By A. P.).—The St. Louis Browns, who finished in seventh place this year, will have a new manager next year.

President Phil Ball today notified George Sisler, first baseman and manager for three years, that he will not be retained as manager next year. Sisler's contract as head of the club expired this season.

"The complete failure of the team this year is all the explanation that is necessary to make, I think," Ball said.

He has not selected a manager, though he has five applications. Bill Killefer, coach of the Cardinals, is not being considered for the place, Ball said.

Sisler came to the Browns in 1915 as a pitcher, but was used at first base and in the outfield. He pitched his last game in 1916, and since that time has played at the first sack. In 1922 he batted .420 and stole 51 bases and was awarded the most valuable player trophy.

THIS year, however, his batting slumped to .291, after he had hit .345 in 1925. Sisler trouble kept him out of play in 1923, but he resumed work in 1924, under Lee Fohl, who was released in September of that year. Austin finishing out the campaign. Sisler was named manager that fall.

Local prediction last spring when the Browns trained in Florida was that the American league club would win the flag or run close to first place. The complaint has been made that Sisler was lenient to the handling of his men and that this was mainly responsible for the cracking of his pitching staff.

"I will not be prepared to make a statement until I find out definitely what the Browns club will do," Sisler said tonight, when asked his plans for the future. "My contract has run out with the club, but I am still their property, and the question eventually will resolve itself into one between the club and me."

He declared that he was not in a position to state what course he would follow when asked if he would remain as first baseman under a new manager.

Babe Visits Sick Boy Who Inspired Him

Essex Falls, N. J., Oct. 11 (By A. P.).—Babe Ruth today paid a visit to Johnny Sylvester, the 10-year-old youth whose sickbed appeal was credited by the Yankee slugger with being the inspiration for his outburst of home-run hitting in the fourth game of the world's series.

"Gee, ain't he big!" muttered Johnny, who is suffering from sinus trouble, as Ruth came into the room. The slugger, told the boy to "cheer up" and handed him an autographed baseball, the last one used in the first series game, signed by the opposing pitchers, Pennock and Sherdel.

MAJ. HESSE WANTS MOTORISTS HELD UP TO GUARD CHILDREN

Impressed With Patrol Tryout, but Disapproves Making Pupils Wait.

EXPERIMENT SHOWS SELFISHNESS, HE SAYS

Holds Safety of Child First Consideration, Drivers' Convenience Follows.

Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, superintendent of police, was impressed with the tryout of the schoolboy traffic patrol plan at the Thompson school, L and Twelfth streets, yesterday but was not satisfied with the details. "I obtained the distinct impression," he said, "that the central idea was to clear the streets of children for the convenience of motorists. That is the exact opposite of what the plan should be. Its purpose should be to make the motorists serve the safety and convenience of children on their way to school."

"I saw selfishness demonstrated repeatedly on the part of the motorists, all of whom knew the school was there and yet tried their utmost to keep their cars in motion and get through quickly, even while the street was filled with officials trying to develop the new system."

Children Made to Wait.

"Children were herded behind the curbs and made to wait for breaks in traffic, when they were piloted across the street. This seemed to me wrong. The automobiles should be held up when the children are crossing the street. If cars are backed up, then a reciprocal halting of the children can be made to let the vehicles through. But the emphasis should be on the safety of the children and not the convenience of motorists. "I am not one who believes that children should be banned from public thoroughfares by the automobile. The children were here first and they will be here last. The responsibility for child safety in traffic lies on the motorists and those in a position to curb the latter."

Former Officials
Admitted to Practice

Huston Thompson, of Colorado, and Vernon W. Van Fleet, of Indiana, both of whom recently resigned from the Federal Trade Commission, were admitted to practice yesterday by the District Supreme Court sitting in general term. James H. Donovan, general counsel for the bureau of internal revenue, and Robert C. Morris, formerly connected with the German Mixed Claims Commission, were also admitted, together with 225 students and 10 attorneys from other jurisdictions.

Among the students was Miss Ollie M. Cooper, 26 years old, the first colored woman to be admitted to practice. She resides at 1114 Howard road southeast. Alfonso P. Dones, of the Philippine Islands, who took the bar examination last June was admitted on motion of John Paul Earnest, chairman of the examining committee.

Forrest Players Hold
Rehearsal Tomorrow

Under the direction of Mrs. Marie Moore Forrest, the Forrest Players of the Southeast community center, will hold their first rehearsal of the season tomorrow night in the auditorium of the Hine Junior High school. The rehearsals will continue every Wednesday night throughout the winter.

The drama group was organized last year under the auspices of the community center department, and in the spring successfully presented three one-act plays. Membership in the group is still open to men and women, as well as boys and girls over 16 years. Applications are being received by Mrs. M. W. Davis, of the Southeast center, at the Hine school.

Two Are Reappointed
To Disability Board

Reappointment of George B. Buck, New York, and Herbert D. Brown, chief of the bureau of efficiency, members of the board of actuaries on the civil service and disability fund, were announced yesterday. Joseph S. McCoy, of the Treasury Department, government actuary, has ex officio tenure in the board's membership.

In March Secretary of the Interior Work questioned the recommendation of the board that appropriations be made by the government to the retirement fund in advance of actual needs, thinking an appropriation was not necessary at this time. The bureau of the budget probably will recommend an annual appropriation for this purpose in line with the board's actuarial recommendation.

New Trade Board Members.

Applications of eight men for membership in the Washington Board of Trade were approved by the executive committee of that body yesterday. The new members are Ray Campbell, Robert J. Cottrell, C. Thomas du Plessis, W. H. Penker, Alfred H. Hollidge, Edward O. Linkens, George G. Stonebraker and James S. Vance.

Jailed on Theft Charges.

James C. White, indicted on a charge of housebreaking and larceny, who was allowed to plead guilty to petit larceny, was sent to jail for six months yesterday by Justice Hitz in criminal court. The accused, it was charged, stole a quantity of old clothing from the headquarters of the Near East Relief on June 3 last.

AUTOMOBILE INJURIES PROVE FATAL TO CHILD

Girl Run Down Near Home; Inquest Today to Fix Blame in Death.

DRIVER MUST APPEAR

Mary F. Rooney, 5 years old, 541 Fourth street southeast, died yesterday in Providence hospital as the result of injuries she suffered when run down by an automobile Sunday near her home. Coroner J. Ramsey Nevitt ordered an inquest to be held in the morgue today at 11 o'clock to fix responsibility for the death.

Ray Shatzer, 2220 Thirty-fifth street northwest, driver of the car, who was taken into custody following the mishap, was released in custody of his attorney to appear at the inquest. The girl suffered a compound fracture of the right thigh, injuries to the lower portion of her body and shock.

Stewart W. Bickerton, 1215 Tenth street northwest, was held for grand jury action by a coroner's jury yesterday in connection with the death, on September 29, of James W. Henderson, 40 years old, 1235 Tenth street northwest.

Henderson was riding in an automobile driven by Bickerton, which struck a trolley pole at Tenth street and Rhode Island avenue northeast. He died in Sibley hospital less than half an hour after the crash.

TRADE BODY REPORT TO URGE NEW BRIDGES

Chain and Kingle Spans First on List; Have Meeting Tonight.

Replacement of the Chain and Kingle Ford bridges will be recommended by George W. Offutt, chairman of the bridges committee of the Washington Board of Trade, at the meeting of that body in the Willard hotel tonight at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Offutt, in his report, also will recommend that the Park Road bridge be repaired and that the old Aqueduct bridge be retained for use as a recreation pier. He will recommend the replacement of the Calvert Street bridge after the Chain and Kingle Ford bridges have been replaced by modern structures.

Third Assistant Postmaster General Warren Irving Glover will be the principal speaker at the meeting. His address will deal with the air-mail service. The twelve former presidents of the trade body will be given special recognition.

Music will be by a quartet from the membership committee and J. Harry Cunningham, president of the body, will preside. A buffet supper will be served.

Baltimore Expenses Soared During 1925

In a summary of the financial status of Baltimore for 1925, published yesterday by the Department of Commerce, it was revealed that $21.53 per capita of population was spent in maintenance and operation of the general departments of the city.

The total revenue receipts amounted to $38,368,333, or $48.18 per capita. The per capita indebtedness increased from $12.24 to $127.27. This increase in the net debt was attributed principally to the bond issues for schools and highways.

Gambrill Addresses Democrats Tonight

Representative Stephen Warfield Gambrill, of the Fifth district, Maryland, will address a meeting of the National Democratic club tonight, in the Gray room of the Raleigh hotel. A number of other speakers have also been listed.

MORE DRASTIC STREET CUT MEASURE ADOPTED

District to Reopen Faulty Work and Charge Cost to Party Responsible.

NEW MINOR RULES ADDED

New and more stringent measures were adopted yesterday against business concerns that cut holes in street pavements and fail to fill them properly so that the pavements can be repaired promptly.

This action was taken at a meeting of the underground construction committee, composed of District department heads, and held in the office of Lieut. Col. J. Franklin Bell, engineer commissioner.

There has been, for several years, a regulation that anyone cutting a hole in street pavements shall "pave and ram" the backfilling so no settling will ensue to make the repaired pavement sag. The rule has not been obeyed and shortage of District inspectors has resulted in failure to correct the evil.

Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, assistant to the engineer commissioner, suggested that all pavement cuts be followed by prompt pavement repairs and that when settling occurs, causing the pavement to sag, the District open it again and repair the damage, charging the cost to the person or company responsible for the faulty refilling.

This new rule was adopted, together with other minor ones, adding the traffic and fire departments to those required to have their underground work, in these cases wires and cables leading to traffic signals and fire alarm boxes, installed before streets are paved to save later tampering with pavements.

HEARING ORDERED ON BUS TERMINAL

Bell Instructs Covell to Prepare Data on Interstate Needs Here.

Bus terminals for lines in interstate traffic will be discussed at a public hearing soon. Lieut. Col. J. Franklin Bell, engineer commissioner, yesterday instructed Maj. W. E. Covell, one of his assistants, to prepare data and arrange for such a hearing.

"I do not care whether there is a central terminal for all bus lines or several terminals," said Col. Bell, "although I personally prefer a union station. The important thing is to cause these companies to provide waiting rooms for patrons and post schedules of rates and services."

"The bus lines use our streets, in return, they should provide their patrons with conveniences and not make our streets waiting rooms and parking places. We want to keep the buses from stopping on our streets for any purpose except to load and unload."
